Appeals approves s... nursing home

The Wilmington Board of Appeals has granted a special permit to the Northgate Healthcare Service Corporation, One Dolores Avenue, Waltham for the construction and operation of a nursing home in an R-20 zone on West Street, between Lowell Street and Westdale Avenue. The appeal was granted on November 10 on a hearing held in the town hall on June 23, 1987.

Northgate was represented at the hearing by Attorney John M. Callan of Wilmington. Among those who also appeared were the corporation president, Dennis S. Sargent, the architect, David H. Dunlap, traffic engineers Paul Konizka and Warren Terrell, and Health Administrator Frank P. Miller.

It was pointed out to the Board of Appeals that the Massachusetts Department of Public Health had identified the need for nursing home beds in the Wilmington area.

The Commission and members of the Public Health Council had previously approved Northgate Healthcare Service Corporation's application for a Determination of Need to construct 82 Level I/II and 60 Level III beds, as well as a 25 slot adult day health center at the West Street location.

At various times since June 23, the attorney, engineer and architect have met with the various town departments, boards and commissions.

The Board of Appeals vote was unanimous. It feels that the proposed use is in harmony with the purpose and intent of the bylaw, and that the granting of the permit does not derogate from the intent and purpose of the zoning bylaw.

The appeals board also pointed out that the granting of the permit does not guarantee an automatic waiver of other required filings by the town, such as Conservation, Board of Health and the Building Inspector.

Light work

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas on Wilmington Common. Mark Constantino is one of several town employes who have been busy installing lights, wiring and conduits on trees. A tree lighting ceremony will be held on Sat., Dec. 5 at 7 p.m.

Selectmen discuss possible meeting with Reading Light board

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington selectmen may yet meet with officials of the Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD), provided certain information is forthcoming and selectmen from other member towns are included in the meeting.

In response to three recent letters from RMLD, selectmen said they would be willing to meet to discuss such issues as street lighting rates and in lieu of tax legislation. However, they stipulated that before such a meeting takes place, RMLD should provide background information and justification of figures released at their recent press conference. These figures include an estimated electric plant purchase price of $12,200,000.

Though RMLD General Manager Leonard Rucker wrote that such material is in the possession of department consultants and is not a matter of public record, selectmen maintained that revealing those figures to the press made them public.

Chairman Robert Cain pointed out that, so far, Reading Light's figures were "unsubstantiated" and warrant close review. He also made the suggestion that selectmen from the four member towns be invited so there can be "no misunderstanding" about Wilmington's action in pursuing its own light department.

Jim Stewart questioned if Wilmington representation on the light board was still an issue since no mention was made of it in the invitation to meet with RMLD. He stressed that representation must be "a major issue" before he would agree to a meeting.

Stewart suggested that Wilmington consultant Robert Patterson be allowed to make a presentation at the joint meeting and selectmen look closer at RMLD's motives and objectives in agreeing to a meeting. He said he hoped light board members would spell out specific areas they are willing to negotiate and not just present their side of the issue. He assured Wilmington residents the board of selectmen's only objective in pursuing the creation of a town light department was to give Wilmington ratepayers "the best deal possible."

In addition to the public response to RMLD's invitation Monday, selectmen also met in a lengthy executive session with their consultant, attorney, and members of the finance committee to discuss strategy.

Six goals outlined for center study

by Arlene Surprenant

A total of six goals for Wilmington Town Center will be addressed by the new consultants for the redevelopment authority (WRA). The goals include a look at the mix of land uses for the center area and a look at parking facilities at the MBTA station on Route 38.

At last Thursday's meeting, WRA members gave the go-ahead to Chairman Jay Donovan to sign the contract with the Boston - based firm Wallace, Floyd Associates Inc. Under contract terms, the consultants began work November 20 and will conclude May 20.

Wallace Floyd has been hired at a cost of $35,000 to conduct a feasibility study of the town center area. The firm will do such things as review existing information on traffic and the environment, generate three alternate bridge design concepts, come up with two town center development options, and recommend one of those options to the board. The two options will contain a specific time frame for the work, the cost factor, design, land use, traffic impact, and real estate implications.

In addition, the firm will participate in WRA meetings and negotiations with DPW and the MBTA, and help prepare public information materials. The contract states that, except for Bruce Campbell and Associates and Kenney Development Co, no part of the work shall be subcontracted without prior written approval.

Wilmington designated Housing Partnership Community

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington has been designated an initial Housing Partnership Community through the Massachusetts Housing Partnership program (MHP).

In a letter dated November 6, Amy Anthony, Secretary of the Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) and Co-Chairman of MHP, commended local efforts to provide affordable housing. She explained that becoming a partner with the state will enable town officials to

...submit project aplications to the HOP program

...apply for new Municipal Advance Program grants up to $20,000 for professional services needed by the town to put together affordable housing proposals with private developers.

...submit joint applications with local non-profit organizations for loans to enable them to design, package, and implement housing proposals.

Once Wilmington proposes a specific housing project to MHP, said Anthony, it may then be designated a Development Partnership Community and gain access to more than a half billion dollars in development funds.

The next step, explained Anthony, is up to town officials, who may determine local housing needs, identify and negotiate for suitable development sites, and select a developer to undertake projects.

The town originally applied to become a partner in order to have some control over the the type and number of affordable housing developments proposed for Wilmington. Under the partnership program, the town could also build projects in what it considers to be the best location, utilizing state funds.

At this time, there are currently three 774 condominium projects under consideration in Wilmington. The Arboretum Apartments project has been denied with conditions and will come before the state Housing Appeals Committee in January.

Proponents of Shawsheen River Estates have come before the board of appeals for a comprehensive permit. That hearing was continued. Reportedly, the application for a permit was recently withdrawn by proponents until such time as site approval comes through.

Middlesex Canal Condominiums has yet to come before the board of appeals for a comprehensive permit.

Hunter dies in Maine accident

A Wilmington man died in a hunting accident in the Maine woods last Thursday.

Thomas C. Bachman, 26, of 10 Marie Dr. was struck by a shot fired by another hunter. The accident occurred about 4 p.m. on Pleasant Ridge Plantation, near Bingham.

Maine authorities have charged Dennis A. Reynolds of Elkton, Md. with manslaughter. He is now free on $20,000 bail, and is scheduled to be arraigned on January 4.

Bachman was employed at Ormes Transportation in Wilmington. He was an expert in judo. When in Boy Scouts, he had been an Eagle Scout.

Bachman was the son of Joan Backman, who had served as nurse at Wilmington High School, and the late Christian Bachman, for many years a member of the Wilmington Finance Committee.

Selectmen honor man for lighting installation

by Arlene Surprenant

John Garrett, an electrical contractor who works in Somerville, was the recipient of a special plaque from the Wilmington Board of Selectmen Monday night.

Garrett was recognized for his donation of electric lights to illuminate the Glen Road ballfield for the Pop Warner program. He also donated considerable time and labor to help install the lights.

"That's a gift to the town of Wilmington and the youth of the town," said Selectman Jim Stewart, adding that without Garrett's generosity, the job would have cost the town $80,000 to $100,000.

Len Howard, President of Wilmington Pop Warner, also commended Garrett saying "the town should be very proud."

He noted there are over 200 youngsters enrolled in the newly reorganized program. He recognized the effort put in by many dedicated residents including Jim Cushing who he said spearheaded the initial undertaking.

Garrett thanked selectmen and gave credit to the volunteers who helped with the light installation, "including Reading Municipal Light."

They help take the headaches out of holiday preparations

by Arlene Surprenant

The fast approaching holiday season is usually marked by stress, frayed nerves, full schedules, and a rush to get everything done in minimal time. This year, four talented ladies offer unique services to make resident's lives easier and the holidays happier for all.

Stillwater Co.

While Stillwater Co. offers a diversified range of products and services, including a new line of handmade primitive jewelry, at this time of year the biggest attraction may well turn out to be the Christmas tree shopping service offered by owner Jean Lefavour.

Approximately 25 satisfied customers took advantage of this personalized service last holiday season. Jean claims the business is not a big money maker. Last year, for instance, customers paid anywhere from $35 for a small five foot tree to $50 for a larger size. This year the prices are expected to go higher.

According to this creative lady, the best part of the job is the satisfaction which comes from choosing just the right tree and the enjoyment she gets out of being a part of other's holiday preparations.

"I really, selfishly just enjoy sharing people's holidays," Jean says. "Just for a moment you can intrude in an accepted way in the life of various people. Obviously, a part of me just likes to be an observer."

Jean also has some credentials in her field. She is a member of the Christmas Tree Growers Association. In the past she sold Christmas trees on Main Street with her son Alan and, since her company's beginnings in 1983, she has been involved in garden design and growing things. Someday, she adds, she hopes to have a tree farm of her own.

Jean advises potential clients to call her one or two weeks in advance for best tree selection. Once a customer contacts her, Jean asks for a description of their "dream tree," including fullness desired, type, height, and where it will be placed in their home. Armed with this information, she invades Spence Farms in Woburn where she chooses just the right tree. Part of the process includes a hug for the tree to see if it's just perfect.

"The people at Spence Farms agreed to my bizarre Christmas tree shopping. They recognize me as this wierd old lady who hugs these trees," Jean explains with a laugh.

After Jean spots the perfect tree, she delivers it and sometimes sets it up in her customer's house. The tree is set up with a bag on the bottom which can be drawn over the branches for easy disposal.

Her whole service, Jean explains, has its foundation in trust in her judgment. It is also, she adds, a "time saver and a comfort saver" since many prospective tree buyers don't wear the proper clothing such as footwear when picking out their tree. Nor do they enjoy getting pitch pine all over their hands.

Jean is armed with a wide knowledge of her business. She explains, for instance, that it takes seven years to grow a proper tree and price is usually dependent not only on tree size but on chemical pesticides and special treatment received by the tree during its growing period. Once homeowners bring their tree indoors, she says, the most important thing they can do is keep the stand filled with water. "Never, ever" let it dry out because a tree will form a seal on the bottom which will prevent water from being absorbed properly.

Tree shopper Jean Lefavour has built a business doing landscaping and other services. During the holiday season, she selects Christmas trees for customers, and takes care of delivering and setting up the tree as well.

Jean confides that her company is still finding its way. The name, taken from the Twenty Third Psalm, seemed to fit with her conception of woodland gardens created in people's backyards; gardens which would offer peace and solitude and an alternative to leaving for summer vacations and fighting traffic jams when people could find a stillness in their own backyards. Her garden creations began with one designed for the front of the Ski Haus in 1984 and has been growing slowly ever since.

Jean also creates all the jewelry in her new jewelry line. She works with gold, silver, brass, and copper and creates mostly necklaces and earrings ranging in price from $10 to $250. On personal request, Jean makes up wreaths and baskets to order, though right now, she says, time is at a premium.

To place an order with Jean for any of her products or services, call her at 657-5298.

Born to Shop

"I like to shop," says Joanne Russo, an understatement in light of the relatively new service she offers to fellow residents this busy holiday season. Her unique shopping service Born To Shop was created only two months ago but each day it continues to grow.

Joanne says she came up with the idea when a friend gave her a teddy bear bearing the slogan "born to shop." With little investment except the cost of business cards and advertising, Joanne's business took off.

Joanne sees her service as a boon to those who are either elderly, homebound, or caught up in the working world. She says she recognized that some people would be willing to pay a little extra for the convenience of having someone else do their shopping chores. Like the woman who had suffered a broken ankle and couldn't get out to do her own shopping.

"There just seem to be so many people working today and their time is so precious," Joanne says, explaining that her service allows them to have some free time.

For $10 to $15 an hour, Joanne will "do everything" including trips to the drug store, clothing stores, food marts, and the cleaners. She usually meets with customers beforehand to go over their list. In picking out special gifts, Joanne prefers to be given some idea before she sets out. She also prefers to stay in Wilmington and neighboring towns.

Joanne expresses the hope that her business will grow, even though she expects to have time left for her family and her volunteer activities. She cheerfully maintains that making her own hours and doing something she loves is one of the best parts of the whole job.

Joanne's also ready with advice for others who, like herself, want to create their own business but don't know where to start.

"If you have an idea,"she says,"just go after it."

If you would like to avail yourself of Joanne's services, she can be reached at 658-3149.

Unique Baskets

Baskets filled with all manner of edible and usable items are the cornerstone of Unique Baskets, a joint venture by Wilmington residents Susan Tremblay and Kathy Catanzano.

The creative, carefully packaged baskets provide the ideal solution to any holiday gift dilemna. They also find their way to shut-ins, like the badly burned six year old at Boston's Shriners Burns Center, to couples celebrating their anniversary, and to birthday celebrants. They are specially designed for chocolate lovers, new homeowners, prospective parents, fine gentlemen, and elegant ladies.

"I think we've had hundreds of ideas," says Susan, who explains the women felt it would be nice to put something other than fruit and flowers in baskets.

Most baskets sell for $25 or more, though some of their popular Christmas tins have gone for as little as $10. Each basket has a special theme and features luxury and practical items which come from 20 suppliers including The Center in Bedford. One holiday offering, for instance , sports all red items, including Christmas mugs, potpourri, candles, candies, and nutcrackers.

The most expensive basket they've ever put together was a bride's special arranged in a wooden goose planter Though it would normally go for $300, the basket/planter was actually offered as a doorprize at Sunday's Wedding Day Expo at the Marriott Hotel. Among the bridal gifts were champagne glasses, wedding teddy bears, a guest book, and a garter for the bride.

The women not only advertise through brochures and in local papers, but through displays set up at fairs and other events. They recently set up a table at the holiday fair at St. Thomas' Church and several of their baskets were up for bid at last Friday's Rotary Club Auction.

Customers may either choose a ready made basket or have one specially created for a specific person or occasion.The women accept credit cards and provide next day delivery service to almost any nearby town. They say they will also ship anywhere in the world via United Parcel.

Despite the long hours ("night and day, day and night, sometimes until midnight") Susan maintains she and Kathy derive immense satisfaction out of providing thoughtful gifts to people who are often too busy to shop for just that right gift themselves. The job entails planning, buying, selling, organization, arranging, and keeping an eye out for new ideas. Kathy, who owns and runs the Craft Connection in town, does most of the color coordination on each basket. And luckily, when work picks up, the ladies have supportive families who lend a hand.

The reward for all their effort is seen in peoples' enjoyment of their product and the fact that "business is growing at a good pace."

To order a basket for that special person in your life, you can get in touch with Susan at 658-9727 or Kathy at 658-9189.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINE

By Sharon Kelley, G.R.I.
Kelley & Kompany

Fixing Up To Sell

A paint brush and a scrub brush can help you get top dollar when it's time to sell your home. Start with a close look at the walls and ceiling, both the condition and the color of the paint. Blemishes are not only unsightly, but they can be misleading as well. If your ceiling needs a touch up, for example, buyers may be wary about the roof or structural integrity of your home, even if the problems are purely cosmetic.

People will try to imagine their furniture in your rooms. If you have strong decorating tastes, such as bold colors or lots of printed wallpaper, think about making it more neutral.

Cleanliness is also very important, especially in the kitchen and baths. Buyers react emotionally to houses, and it's hard to fall in love with dirty dishes, dustballs, and bathtub rings. Before you allow agents to show your home, go through each room and make it shine. It really does make a big difference.

Sludge committees formed

by Arlene Surprenant

In one of his first acts as Wilmington's Assistant Town Manager, Jeffrey Hull Monday night updated the Board of Selectmen on the formation of three committees to oversee work and studies undertaken by the Mass. Water Resource Authority (MWRA) and to give input on the proposed sludge treatment facility.

The Facilities Planning Citizens Advisory Committee will be the main committee. It will include 28 people from the Environmental Protection Agency, and the state's government and business sector. A subcommittee on residuals management and local advisory committees comprised of residents from the 12 communities being considered as possible sites for the sludge facility will also be formed.

The local advisory task force in Wilmington will be made up of four Wilmington residents, four Bedford residents, and one member from the subcommittee.

Those persons being considered for the local committee are Dirk Peterson, George Cutting, Greg Erickson, Bob Adams, Libby Sabounjian, Jeffrey Hull, Tom Poucher, and Steve Ellis. Other names may be added to the list, which will be submitted to the MWRA for the final selection.

At Monday's selectmen meeting, Hull also reviewed the Residuals Management Facilities Plan which outlines 31 different options relating to sludge treatment which are available to the 12 communities. Three phases which fall under the plan involve composting and incineration, transfer facilities, and landfilling. Hull said it was possible that one of the 12 communities under consideration could end up with two of the three phases in their backyard.

When questioned about the status of the 43 lot subdivision being planned for Andover Street on the proposed sludge site, Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said Hull referred to it in a recent letter to the EPA. In the letter he outlined the town's concerns on air pollution, environment, and traffic in the vicinity of the site. Developer Dan Fonzi, added Stapczynski, hopes to have the necessary approvals from town boards to begin construction in early spring.

Wilmington girl ranked fourth in national NASTAR skiing

Wilmington resident Paige Heller placed fourth in the national Coca-Cola Junior NASTAR ski racing program last season. Coca-Cola Jr. NASTAR is America's largest youth recreational racing program and is open to kids of all abilities. Offered at 150 ski areas across the country, more than 100,000 young racers participated ian the Coca-Cola Jr. NASTAR program last season.

Racing in the female 07-09 category, Paige earned a season best average handicap of 27.6 while competing at Bradford Ski Area. .

"Paige can be very proud of a fourth place finish. It's a tremendous triumph for a kid to be ranked nationally," said NASTAR Commissioner and former U.S. Ski Team Coach Bob Beattie. "With the Winter Olympics bringing skiing to national attention this year, it's especially encouraging to see our young racers excel."

For the first time this winter, the U.S. Ski Team teams up with NASTAR. All ski team members will be earning personal handicaps and setting NASTAR's national standards. Our junior champions can now see how they compare to their favorite U.S. Olympic racer.

The Coca-Cola Junior NASTAR program ranks the top 10 girls and 10 boys in the country by age, gender, and the average of their best three NASTAR handicaps. Racers compete in the following age groups: four and under; 5-6; 7-9; 10-12; 13-15; and 16-18.

National leaders each receive a personalized plaque, special edition pin, and congratulatory letter. They are also recognized on a nationally distributed Coca-Cola Junior NASTAR Rankings Poster and are honored in the December issue of SKI Magazine. First place champions receive special edition I-Ski sunglasses.

Along with the National Rankings Program, top young skiers are ranked in each of 43 states and can win gold, silver, and bronze medals each time they race based on their performance in their age group.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois
Certified Public Accountant

YES OR NO ON THE IRA?

If your income level qualifies you to deduct your IRA contribution fully, do make as large a contribution as you can. An IRA remains a first-class vehicle in which to save for retirement.

Even those who can't deduct their entire contributions, the IRA is still a good deal -- just a little more complicated. It will be very important to keep records of what contributions came from taxed income and what has not yet been taxed, because if you can't prove that the money was taxed once already, the IRS will try to tax again when you withdraw it from your IRA.

When you start withdrawing your IRA money -- any time after 59-1/2 -- each withdrawal will be considered part taxed and part taxable, in proportion to the total of each type of funds in all of your IRA accounts. You won't be able to take out taxed money first.

One loophole: putting all taxed contributions into the spousal account of the unemployed spouse, and withdrawing that first.

We'll help you make the most of your retirement options at

by Kevin John Sowyrda

"I'm sorry to bother you, but my car is out of gas, and my wife is having a baby."

At 4:15 in the morning, that's about the last thing that one would expect this guy to utter, who sent a message of urgency in just the way he rattled at the door last Saturday night. But that was his problem nonetheless.

Since I was watching the Creature Quadruple Feature before dozing off, I was convinced that whoever was knocking at the front door was an axe murderer, kidnapper, another convict accidently let go by State Corrections, or even worse, one of the six Democrats campaigning for president. I was wrong.

The man at my door was Wayne A. Hillyard, from Hudson, New Hampshire. Wayne had a bit of a problem. Mrs. Hillyard had decided to go into labor on this cold November morning. So off it was to Malden Hospital. I never asked why the Hillyards don't patronize New Hampshire hospitals, though perhaps they've all been shut down to help pay for Seabrook.

As Wayne told the story, he was brisking down Route 93 when he noticed his gas tank was near empty. Getting off at Route 62, Wayne couldn't find an open gas station, and eventually stopped at our house further down the way, which had plenty of lights on out front (this is directly connected to my having watched the Creature Quadruple Feature before retiring for the evening).

As he brought me out of a sound sleep, I wasn't too keen for this guy. But, his story was certainly original. "I'm sorry to bother you, but my car is out of gas, and my wife is having a baby." With this I gave a quick ring to the police department that a local driveway was about to become a maternity ward. I then went outside to keep the Hillyards company, only to see that his wife was, shall we say, extremely pregnant.

About thirty seconds later the police and fire departments arrived, with a few comments that Wayne from New Hampshire had picked the right house. Of course, Dad and Mom were away for the weekend, which wouldn't have helped matters anyway.

The strange thing about Wayne was that he continued to fret about leaving his gasless car. You see, Wayne was driving a brand new Volvo. This is my favorite car to make fun of, as the world knows. They say you know a man by the car he drives, and Volvos are known as liberal-democrat-mobiles. In fact, to run for city council in Cambridge you must have owned a Volvo for the last five years.

With some convincing from the police, Wayne realized that the Mrs. was more close than he thought to making him a daddy, so he quickly joined his wife in the town ambulance. I never did get a chance to find out how things worked out at the hospital, but anyone who drives a Volvo can probably afford twins.

The moral to this story is twofold. First, if your wife is expecting a baby, always keep the tank filled. Second, If your wife is close to labor, buy a car phone just in case you forget number one. There's nothing worse than being awakened by a daddy-to-be.

Board of Appeals needs limits

by Bill Conlon

The Tewksbury Board of Selectmen complained last week about the Board of Appeals, and more unfavorable comments were heard Monday night during a Planning Board discussion of the group.

Something needs to be done about the appeals board.

A recent decision to allow conversion of General Ames's "castle" on Catamount Road into an apartment building has resulted in a lawsuit filed last week in Middlesex Superior Court, and the continuing saga of Ed and Barb Flanagan, in their fight against the D.A.V. headquarters on Pond Street, continues to wind along through legal channels. Court cases were brought to overturn both questionable decisions by the appeals board, while other appeals actions receive less attention.

The selectmen allowed a request once to televise the appeals board, when the "castle" came up for a public hearing. Constant scrutiny of the board has merits, and the selectmen should consider keeping TV cameras on the appeals board more often.

Appeals boards in most towns receive only a few applications each month. The Tewksbury board accepts about 30 requests a month, which should be indicative of what goes on there, and far too many requests are granted.

The Board of Appeals, at least in principle, was established under Massachusetts law to offer relief for those residents who fall between the cracks of the zoning by–laws. An example would be someone who discovers his garage is three inches too close to his property boundary. Instead of having to tear down the structure, the resident can go to the appeals board for relief. So far so good.

But some of the decisions rendered by the appeals board are nothing short of outrageous. Take one-acre residential zoning, adopted by the town some years ago.

As planning board member Joe Doherty pointed out on Monday night, "Anybody who thinks we have acre zoning must have just arrived from the moon." The appeals board routinely allows acre lots to be split, in violation of the zoning by-laws, and the required provable hardship is sometimes scanty at best.

And perhaps there lies the problem. Instead of prudently doling out bits of relief to those oppressed by the by-laws, applicants to the appeals board can seek an override to virtually any zoning by–law. Instead of granting exceptions, the appeals board often allows the rulebook itself to be thrown out.

As Ed Flanagan asked last week, "Why should we have to spend our own money to enforce the zoning by-laws of this town?" The by-laws should be written in stone, and the appeals board should only grant limited exceptions, and few of those. But the board has gone far beyond that limited area.

In the case of the "castle" decision on Catamount Road, town counsel told the board they shouldn't approve the application, but they did anyway. Now the decision will go before a judge, and some of the arguments made by the plaintiff's attorney, if approved, should rightly result in official reprimands for some of the appeals board members. Not all, but some of them.

Selectmen appoint the appeals board members, and Chairman Hallisey commented last week that little could be done except to deny reappointments. If stronger disciplinary measures were available for slapping down the board of appeals, a growing number of town residents might ask for them to be invoked.

A better question to ask might be: What has the appeals board done for the betterment of the town?

Five generations

The November 25, 1962 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

The recount of ballots in the contested election of Volpe and Peabody for governor was scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Wildwood School.

The Registry of Motor Vehicles would set up a temporary office in Woburn Armory for December for the process of license plates.

WHS undefeated football team was in a four way tie for the state championship in the Class C level with Hudson, Catholic Memorial and Abington.

Kerry Gaulder of Salem Street became a U.S. citizen Friday in Lowell Court.

Charles Nickerson of Woburn Street was drawn for grand jury duty at Cambridge; Earle Camber of Chestnut Street and Loretta Davis of Jones Ayenue were named to serve in the Cambridge jury pool.

The board of selectmen voted to purchase an emergency generator for use by the town in or out of civil defense. Cost of the generator was to be about $2000.

Members of the West Wilmington Teenagers' Club would sponsor a Christmas party December 15 for the children of the Franco American Orphanage in Lowell. Pictured on the committee for the event were Anita Rosa, Kenneth Carter, Pearl White, Ronnie Pupa and Dorothy Chapman.

WHS cheerleaders Peggy Carbone and Alice Perry were pictured lamenting the fact that halfback Jackie Bowen was called back after an 85 yard run during the game with Tewksbury.

An ad offered snowplowing with no job too small or too large and said that the average driveway could be plowed for $2.50.

Patty Fiske of Church Street won the New Jersey Indoor Skating championship Sunday in West Orange. Nancy Weinberg of Burlington Avenue was the only other member of the Wilmington skating Club to enter the competition. She came in second in the 330 yard distance.

Fred Lippert and "Red" Foye, of West Street, Paul Duggan and Lloyd Belbin were among the first of the season to bag deers.

Plans were afoot to move the old "bug" house (Tree Department building) from its location near the ancient cemetery by the Congregational Church on Middlesex Avenue (where it had been since before the turn of the century). Figures were gathered by acting Town Mangaer Harold Melzar.

The Humble Farmer

Touting America's playground

This morning the editor of a glossy business magazine asked me to write a short, humorous essay on why our state is the best place in the world to hold conferences. Said essay will be run beneath my high school yearbook picture and telephone number in said magazine and be distributed by Delta Airlines to meeting planners all over the country.

Delta's interest is obvious - we are a long way from anywhere and the only way to get here is by dog sled or air. The interest of our neighbors who own the business magazine and the local convention centers also needs no explanation.

I, of course, could care less if they never held another convention or conference within 500 miles of here - although I'm only able to maintain my present household staff and the payments on my heated pool and body building machines by entertaining at several dozen of them every year.

So what's my problem?

Anyone who has ever read this column knows that I have yet to have an original thought. It is no secret that every Monday I dash from friend to friend, hoping to scoff up a bit of local misfortune that I can disguise and pass off as original wit.

And I had forgotten that most people - unfortunately including all of the friends who usually wax eloquent when I pull out my pen - can't stand the thought of another tourist or wax-works delegate looking us over. They might like it here and decide to move in.

When I asked what I could write that would encourage people to come to the area - two friends turned their dogs on me. Another tried to throw me down a flight of stairs. A peaceful soul, who seldom speaks above a whisper, flew into a rage and swore he'd tell the world I'd appreciate a couple of zucchini.

So I was forced to break new ground. For years I'd been meaning to include Galloping Gillis in my route. After being rejected by my regular sources I really had no other choice.

When I drove into his yard Gillis was hanging out the wash, looking somewhat like the Wolf Man because of two blue plastic clothes-pins in his mouth.

After hearing of my errand, he said, "When in doubt, quote the Bible. Turn to an obscure chapter that deals with scourge and pestilence and say that it will strike down those who don't hold conventions here. Let's be honest. If we had anything worth while, the mob would want it. What good can you say about a place in which organized crime has no interest?"

"It is safe to walk on our streets," I agreed.

"Right. Few people have ever been mugged by a moose in a pine studded ghetto. Oh, several years ago a couple of New York City muggers fell asleep on a Greyhound bus in Port Authority and ended up not far from here. But within a week they were broken men. The best hit they made during their stay was on one of our better citizens who was carrying a three dollar book of food stamps."

"There are wealthy neighbors nearby," I said defensively.

"True, but if you've been there lately you've noticed that half their septic tanks are leaking and running into the streets, too."

"But think what creates that sewage," I cried. "Foi de gras, filet mignon and Chateau Blanc '65."

Galloping Gillis threw his hands over his head and said, "Unfortunately, when it seeps out of their leach field even the experts couldn't tell it from cheap beer and hamburger - if it weren't heavily laced with cocaine."

A neighborhood family

by Arlene Surprenant

Many people have the misconception that New Englanders are cold. In my experience, nothing could be further from the truth. Take, for example, my neighborhood.

As neighborhoods go, ours is probably no different from others in Wilmington. True, one of my neighbors works for the government and brings back all kinds of exotic gifts from faraway lands. Another holds a degree from Harvard but is most comfortable fixing up old cars and houses as well. We also boast a fireman, a policeman, a few teachers, an electrician, a bookkeeper, some typical housewives, and numerous others.

When you look close, though, you discover a neighborhood is not what people are but who they are. And for the eight years I've lived on Reed Street, I've come to realize my neighbors are some of the most caring friends I've ever known.

Take the occasion of my 40th birthday. Imagine my surprise when I answered the door that night to see friends and neighbors stretched down the driveway bearing platters of homemade food which tasted as good as it looked. It was an instant party and, lucky for me, everyone overlooked the lived-in look of the upstairs and helped me enjoy a truly memorable evening. One neighbor even remembered my penchant for collecting nostalgic old tins and gifted me with several which are on permanent display in my spacious kitchen.

There are several things that make my neighborhood special. We are a neighborhood of doers who believe in getting involved in community activities. We support those who seek office and volunteer in school PACS, the girl scouts, church events, and other community efforts. We attend, in a body, town social functions and get together on a regular basis to share graduations, birthdays, weddings, and even recipes. We babysit for each other's children and keep an eye on each other's homes. We take the time to listen and make the time to care.

We are also a neighborhood of walkers. Not a day goes by you don't run into a small group pacing off one or two miles and catching up on neighborhood gossip at the same time.

Today, when most of us are overwhelmed with our busy lives, we still gather for New Years Eve celebrations, barbeques, pool parties, and our annual participation in Fourth of July on Wilmington Town Common.

We also have neighborhood yard sales, informal affairs with everyone offering everything but the kitchen sink for sale. Of course, what usually happens is we buy more from each other than we sell, but that's part of the fun. At least there's a sense of continuity in recycling our children's still good snowsuits, books, bikes, and dolls and keeping them among friends.

In times of trouble, our neighborhood closes ranks. In the past year, for instance, there have been several serious accidents and at least three deaths have taken their toll. One close neighbor and friend died this past spring. We're all still struggling to understand why. At the time, offers of help, casseroles and other food, and words of solace let her family know they were not alone. Later, a tree from her many friends was planted in her memory in the heart of town.

When my father died in August, my neighbors were there for our family, calling each day, sending fruit, messages, and most of all their love. After hearing the bad news, I recall running into one neighbor as I stumbled along in the early morning rain. No words were needed. Just a strong pair of arms and a comforting hug.

So it is this Thanksgiving, when we traditionally give thanks for our blessings, I give thanks for some beautiful neighbors. Neighbors who have been, and continue to be, like a big caring family to me.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

My children and I would like to thank all the generous and caring people who participated in the fundraiser held in our behalf Sat., Oct. 17, 1987.

Special thanks to Jimmy's mother and sisters who organized the affair, to the workers at the Sons of Italy who volunteered their time and gave their tips to the fund. To Theresa Trainor, the caterer, and Mickey Conchiglia, the disc jockey, who donated their services.

The children are too young to understand the generosity of all who attended or helped run this benefit. As they grow older I'm sure they will appreciate it as much as I do.

With sincere thanks,
Lisa, Jimmy and Nolan Flaherty

Football teams praised by coach

by Arlene Surprenant

JV and varsity football players at Wilmington High were praised by Coach Ed Harrison during a football update before school committee members last Wednesday.

Harrison called the 34 boys who make up the teams "extremely dedicated," especially in the face of a 1-7-1 record and the disparity in enrollment figures between Wilmington High and competing schools. He told committeemen though he didn't want to make "excuses," perhaps the time had come to take a closer look at the problem.

Harrison pointed out some of the town's best athletes are attracted to private schools. many students only go out for one sport, and others hold down jobs ard are not willing to join a team. All of this creates problems when it comes to recruitment of players, Harrison said.

When questioned, Harrison said he supports efforts to join an alternate league like the Cape Ann League. Athletic Director Jim Gillis said he felt optimistic about such a possibility since Cape Ann will soon be voting to change its constitution, making voting practices less stringent. Gillis also took the occasion to commend both the teams and the coaching staff for their persistence and their effort throughout the season.

New Outreach program reaches youths

"I don't like school; I don't care how I do; I got four interims; I can't wait until I'm 16 so I can leave school." Do any of these statements sound familiar?

The Wilmington Public Schools have begun a new Outreach Program designed to aid those students experiencing difficulty in the school setting. In order to determine who the most at risk students are and what resources and alternatives are available for them, the staff is interviewing high schoold dropouts, meeting with staff throughout the school system, and visiting programs in other towns. This will contribute to the ongoing assessment of Wilmington's needs for the purpose of making long term recommendations.

In addition, the Outreach staff is conducting a pilot "Focus Group" program in the imtermediate schools. The main goals of this program are to improve self esteem, increase student responsibility, and provide a positive school experience. The program involves intensive academic monitoring, individual and group counseling, and family meetings. The staff is also conducting group discussions for students who have received multiple detentions, with the intent of lowering the detention rate.

For more information about the Outreach Program, feel free to contact Elaine Levine or Ellen Cooney (Outreach staff) at the intermediate schools - 658-6540 or 657-7111.

Updated honor roll system approved

by Arlene Surprenant

In a five to one vote, Wilmington School Committeemen went along with a recommendation by Supt. Robert Horan to approve new requirements for the intermediate level honor roll. The issue was introduced at a previous meeting and carried over to last Wednesday because of concerns about grading criteria.

Under the new system, students with all A's in major subjects and B's in electives will make the high honor roll; with all A's and B's and only one C will make the honor roll; and with A's and B's and two C's will be listed as an honorable mention.

Some members had questioned the fairness of requiring high grades in specialty subjects. They felt this practise might penalize students who excel academically but are not proficient in such areas as art, music, and sewing. Assistant Supt. Henry Dembowski assured committeemen specialty teachers look at other grading criteria.

At Wednesday's meeting, Dembowski said he had met with the teachers concerned to discuss criteria. They decided that henceforth grades for electives will be based on student preparation, effort, conduct, homework, and amount of absenteism. Dembowski added that he felt strongly that parents and students get the message that all subjects are important. Horan agreed. He said changing the grading system is a positive move to create higher expectations in students.

Chairman Tony Accardi, who cast the only dissenting vote, had a problem with tying conduct into an academic grade. Bridget Zukas said she respected the work that went into the change but felt that there may be some pupils who will "lose out" under the new system.

Member James Demos pointed out that rewarding good attendance, student effort, and proper behavior in the earlier grades wards off many problems at the high school level.

"These are important issues, especially at the intermediate level. I definitely support this," he said.

Water Dept. seeks fast payment of bills

The Wilmington Water Commissioners are seeking means of speeding up payments of water bills.

The commissioners are, at this time, constructing a new water purification station in North Wilmington, for the dual purpose of providing additional water, and of removing iron rust and other ingredients from the water.

According to Commissioner Arthur Smith there is from $50 to $80 thousand a year being withheld, for late payment of water bills. "We need the money," he said, "to pay our engineering bills."

A few years ago the town meeting voted that water bills which had not been paid, at the end of the year, should be added to the tax bills for the property and thus be collected. This seeming assist to the collection of water bills has not always speeded collections.

Some families are now withholding payments of water bills so that those bills will become a part of their tax bills. The entire sum, of water bills and ~~tax~~ bills can then be shown and claimed as tax bills, in computing income tax expense deductions.

Arthur Smith, last Thursday proposed that if water bills are not paid three months after the year ends - "Off goes your water!"

Chairman George Allan agreed with the idea. There should be, he said, a turn off charge, and a turn on charge. The turn on charge should be $25.

"Just do it once! That's all!"

Other ideas were discussed, including the taking of property where payments had not been made.

Smith finished with: "We are going to get the money, or we are going to own a lot of property! We will be turning off the water. Never mind this stuff about 'the check is in the mail!'"

Students score high on Iowa test

Wilmington students scored higher in this fall's Iowa tests in all categories than students last year. This information was revealed by Assistant Supt. Henry Dembowski at last week's school commitee meeting.

Dembowski praised the 233 fifth graders and 193 eighth graders who took the tests which measured proficiency in vocabulary, reading, language, work study, and math.

Dembowski said fifth grade students across town did "superb," especially in language and work study where they were almost at the 99 percentile. The only area of concern, he said, was the reading category where eighth grade students fell slightly below the 80th percentile. The lower score was partially attributed to the number of basic needs student and pupils in basic skills classes who took the test.

Aquarium pass available

The Wilmington Memorial Library has announced that a family pass to the New England Aquarium will be available to Wilmington residents starting December 1. This pass enables a family of four to visit the aquarium at any time, free of charge, at a savings of $20.50.

Aquarium hours are: Monday through Thursday, 9-5; Friday,9-9; Saturday, Sunday, and holidays, 9-6. Current attractions include dolphins doing acrobatic tricks, live sharks in the giant ocean tank, and a new exhibit, "Stars of the Sea", featuring rare varieties of starfish.

The acquisition of this pass was made possible by donations from the Sons of Italy and the School Improvement Councils of the Shawsheen School, Wildwood School, and North Intermediate School.

Anyone wishing to visit the aquarium, especially during the upcoming vacations, is urged to call or visit the library and make a reservation. The library further reminds everyone that family passes are available also to the Boston Museum of Science and the Boston Children's Museum.

Gym suits on sale

Parents are reminded that Wildcat gym suits are on sale at the two intermediate schools. Gym shirts are also on sale at the three elementary schools.

These would make great holiday gifts for that special son or daughter. See physical eduacation teachers for complete details.

Shawsheen School

Shawsheen students not only got to don their best finery Monday for Student Dress-Up Day but they also put their best foot forward for their parents, who had a rare chance to see them at work. As they did last year in recognition of National Education Week, school administrators once again invited parents to visit their child's class. Judging from the amount of cars outside the school, many moms and dads took this opportunity to learn what goes on inside their child's school.

It should be noted that the New England Touring Theater productions scheduled for November 12 at Shawsheen has been re-scheduled for December 4. During that week, students will also have an opportunity to buy gifts for family and friends at the PAC sponsored store Santa's Secret Shop. Many volunteers make this a special event for the students each year.

NOTE: Any school news should be turned into the Town Crier office by Monday afternoons. Or you may call Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696.

Woburn Street School

Santa's Secret Shop is coming once again to the Woburn Street School on Dec. 1, 2, 3 and 4. This PAC-sponsored program is designed to allow students the joy and experience of selecting a secret gift for someone special during the holiday season. The shop, open during school hours only, is a mini store set up for the children in the school.

EOCD annouces funding assistance for Affordable Housing

State Secretary of Communities and Development Amy S. Anthony recently announced that additional state assistance will be available to communities where affordable housing developments are proposed. Funds offered through the state's Municipal Advance program will pay for legal and technical help so that communities can respond more effectively to requests for comprehensive permits used in the development of low and moderate income housing.

"Since Chapter 774 established the comprehensive permit process almost 20 years ago, it has been a valuable tool in our efforts to increase the supply of affordable housing," Anthony said. "These resources will help communities better understand how the comprehensive permit process works while becoming more actively involved as partners in the development of affordable housing."

Comprehensive permits are used in the development of low or moderate income housing, often involving construction at greater density than allowed by local zoning laws. In most cases, comprehensive permits are awarded at the local level. In some cases, a developer can appeal a local decision to the state's Housing Appeals Committee which can issue a comprehensive permit to a developer.

Anthony noted that a strong real estate market has led to an increase in affordable housing development which in turn, has also increased the number of requests for comprehensive permits. This high level of demand has resulted in some misunderstanding about how the comprehensive process works.

"This new assistance will help communities use Chapter 774 and negotiate with developers so that housing which is built is in keeping with the character of the community," Anthony said. "The process allows both communities and developers to become partners in efforts to make housing opportunities available for all our citizens."

Any community in the state where a housing development requiring a comprehensive permit has been proposed is eligible to receive technical assistance funds for legal, planning, and technical assistance. Awards of up to $10,000 will be made on an on-going basis.

In addition to these Municipal Advance Resources, Anthony noted that the state is providing other assistance to communities as well. A new brochure on the Chapter 774 process is being prepared and regional conferences are being held throughout the state.

"Over 11,000 housing units have been built through the Chapter 774 process, a considerable achievement which we should strive to match in our continuing efforts to provide decent and affordable housing," Anthony added. "Communities will now have access to professional assistance as they consider proposals for the development of affordable housing which will address local housing needs."

Key-line credit at First Bank

Promoted as "The Dawn of a New Line of Credit for Business People and Investors," First Bank has introduced a first for Greater Lowell business people, a loan secured by the equity built up in business or investment properties and second homes.

"It's called Commercial Key-Line and it's revolutionary," says First Bank Senior Vice President Patrick Clarke, "because a revolving line of credit quite like this has never been offered before by any bank in Greater Lowell. It just might change commercial financing in this area forever."

The idea for Commercial Key-Line came from the home equity lines of credit that banks have been offering to homeowners for years. First Bank itself was one of the first institutions in Greater Lowell to offer this type of financing to homeowners.

"We simply looked at the concept behind the home equity loans and then asked why it couldn't also be done for business people," says Patrick Clarke. "It took many hours of research and development, which resulted in a product we are quite excited about," Clarke continues.

With Commercial Key-Line, a business person has a revolving line of credit which means that funds can be borrowed, paid, and reborrowed.

In addition, since it's a line of credit, business people can write themselves loans whenever they need the cash. "The funds could be used for a number of needs," says Joseph Carelli, assistant vice president and one of the developers of Commercial Key-Line. "Business people could use the loans for such enterprising ideas as expanding facilities, or purchasing new equipment or even investing in new property. There's a long list of possibilities."

The rates for Commercial Key-Line are calculated with a formula that is based on the Prime Rate. The total amount of the loan is based on 70 percent of the appraised value of the property, less the outstanding first mortgage.

As with most mortgages, there are fees associated with such an organization, application and annual fees. "The fees basically cover our administration costs," says Joseph Carelli. "The bottom line is that the fees for the business person add up to a minimal cost when compared to the total potential funds and flexibility that will be readily available to him or her with a Commercial Key-Line."

"Basically, it's a great opportunity for local businesses to gain some needed working capital," says Patrick Clarke. "Property owners can borrow against the built up equity in their business or investment property without disturbing the low rate of their first mortgage. And we feel that is good for continued healthy commercial growth in Greater Lowell."

First Bank is also the bank that earlier this year added a number of non-traditional banking "Advantages" to its Prime Time Account, a package plan designed specifically for people 55 years of age and over. First Bank also was one of the institutions that pioneered the Self-Directed IRA concept to this area early in 1986.

Benefit holiday raffle

With the holidays approaching, the Chambers of Commerce and Industry - Northern Middlesex is sponsoring its annual holiday raffle. Tickets will be sold at $100 per ticket, with the drawing to take place Wednesday, Dec. 23 at the Chambers office in downtown Lowell. Proceeds to benefit the Northern Middlesex Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Only 300 tickets will be sold on a first come, first served basis. First prize is $7500, and other prizes are $1000 and two $500 awards. The Chambers will hold an open house reception from 5 to 7 p.m. on the 23rd. Drawing time for the prizes is scheduled for 6 p.m.

We're hoping to make someone's holiday extra special," said Kevin E. Coughlin, Chambers president and chief executive officer. "The money generated from the raffle will help to ensure the Convention and Visitors Bureau in providing the best possible programs it can."

To purchase your ticket, stop by the Chambers office at 45 Palmer Street, Lowell. Or for further information, contact the office at (617) 937-9300.

Andover Bank joins Yankee 24 ATM network

Andover Bank recently announced that it has become a member of the Yankee 24 Automated Teller Machine (ATM) Network. This will give Andover Bank customers access to their money at over 1700 Yankee 24 ATM locations throughout New England. More than 500 financial institutions are currently participating in the network.

According to Robert M. Henderson, president of Andover Bank, "We pride ourselves on the innovative services we provide our customers. By joining Yankee 24, Andover Bank has made it possible for anyone who holds an Andover Bank Personal Touch card to have access to their accounts at numerous locations around New England 24 hours a day, seven days a week. All of us at Andover Bank are very excited about offering this service to our customers."

Yankee 24 is operated by New England Network, Inc., under the trademark Yankee 24. It is New England's fastest growing regional ATM network and serves financial institutions in all six New England states.

Andover Bank currently has assets of over $600 million and is headquartered in Andover with branch banking offices in West Andover, Lawrence, Methuen, North Andover and Tewksbury.

Chambers monthly meeting

The Chambers of Commerce and Industry - Northern Middlesex resumes its monthly "Business Connections" program Tuesday, December 1. The Chambers networking event will be held at the Speare House Restaurant, at 525 Pawtucket Boulevard in Lowell.

From 5:15 to 7 p.m., the Chambers will afford regional business persons the opportunity to meet in a social atmosphere apart from their hectic work schedules. Hors d'oervres will be served and a cash bar will be available. Door prizes have been donated by several Chambers members to be raffled during the evening.

"Any businessperson who has not yet taken advantage of our Business Connections program should plan to attend December 1," said Kevin E. Coughlin, president and chief executive officer of the Chambers of Commerce and Industry-Northern Middlesex. "An average attendance for our program is 150 and the opportunity to make new business contacts is excellent, as the businesses represented are varied in size and type of industry."

The cost of this Chambers program is $5 for members and non-members alike. Attendees are encouraged to take plenty of business cards and promotional materials for display. In order to secure your reservation, send a check payable to the Chambers of Commerce and Industry-Northern Middlesex at 45 Palmer Street, Lowell, Massachusetts 01852. For further information, contact the office at (617) 937-9300.

Merrimack Valley Chorale presents Christmas concerts

Under the direction of William Spencer and accompanied by Deborah Botham, the Merrimack Valley Chorale will present two Christmas concerts this season, "A Chelmsford Christmas" and "A Messiah Sing."

"A Chelmsford Christmas" features "The Infant Jesus" by Buxtehude, and "Regina Coeli" by Mozart with other seasonal selections and a Living Christmas Tree. The concert will be performed with a string quartet and organ on Sunday afternoon, Decemer 6 at three o'clock at the Trinity Lutheran Church on Old Westford Road in Chelmsford. Tickets are available from the members or at the door.

"A Messiah Sing" with organ will be presented by the Chorale on Tuesday evening, December 15 at eight o'clock at St. John the Evangelist Church in North Chelmsford. Take your own scores for the Messiah or scores will be available for rental. Tickets are available for either concert from the members or at the door. Refreshments will be served after "The Messiah."

The Chorale's director, William Spencer, holds a bachelor of music in vocal production from the State University of New York and certification from Vienna's Statsoper and Konservatorium Der Stadt Wien. His many directorships include the Village Light Opera Group, the Manhatten Savoyeds of New York City, and many church choir directorships. Ms. Deborah Botham brings her background of wide experience accompanying many community groups, summer stock, and local churches. She studied with the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music and the Lancaster Conservatory of Music.

Chapter I PAC meeting December 1

There will be a Chapter I PAC orientation meeting Tuesday, December 1 from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. in the cafeteria of the Shawsheen School. Babysitters will be provided.

The agenda of the meeting will include a discussion of the Chapter I Reading Program by Brenda Squire, Chapter I director and individual conferences with Chapter I teachers.

All parents of children in the Chapter I program as well as any resident of Wilmington are invited to attend.

Questions should be directed to Mrs. Brenda Squire, Director of Chapter I Reading at 658-4582.

Public invited to AIM Christmas meeting

The Wilmington Committee for Citizens with Disabilities (WCCD) has invited everyone to a Christmas meeting at Aim Headquarters, located at the Wilmington Fourth of July Headquarters Building, opposite the Common, on Tuesday, Dec. 15 from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The program starts at 10:30 a.m. with a coffee hour. At 11:30 a.m. Lt. John Brown of the Wilmington Fire Dept. will offer an informal presentation outlining the goals of this support group. Following will be a question and answer period.

At 12:30 p.m. there will be a break for a buffet luncheon. At 1:30 p.m., the meeting will close with the singing of Christmas Carols.

Susan Willett will sing in Boston concert

Susan Willett, daughter of Rita Willett of Wilmington, a freshman vocalist at Berklee College of Music, Boston, and a member of the jazz ensemble led by Roy Louis, which will perform "Music of the Spheres," an exciting concert of orchestral and contemporary jazz, at 7 p.m., December 4 at the Berklee Recital Hall.

Susan is majoring in professional music at Berklee, the global leader in music education for its illustrious jazz faculty and practical career preparation.

Santa at the zoo

The winter solstice would not be complete without a holiday festival at the Stone Zoo, Saturday, Dec. 12 from 1 to 3 p.m. Santa's coming to Stone Zoo!

Join Santa and local carolers with your friends and family. Be sure to tell Santa what you want for Christmas and he'll be sure to give you a candy cane to sweeten the season.

"Sasha," the Siberian tiger and "Ursa," the polar bear will wish you good cheer. You can top off the afternoon and warm up in the aviary where you'll see hundreds of exotic and domestic birds and tropical plants.

Don't disappoint Old Saint Nick having taken a long journey from the North Pole to Stone Zoo.

Full length "Nutcracker" ballet at Collins Center

The Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre brings a holiday classic, "The Nutcracker," to the stage of the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts, Shawsheen Road, Andover on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 4, 5, and 6 for five performances.

Returning to the Collins Center following rave reviews of their "Nutcracker" performances last year, the corps of 32 dancers will be accompanied live by a 40-piece professional orchestra.

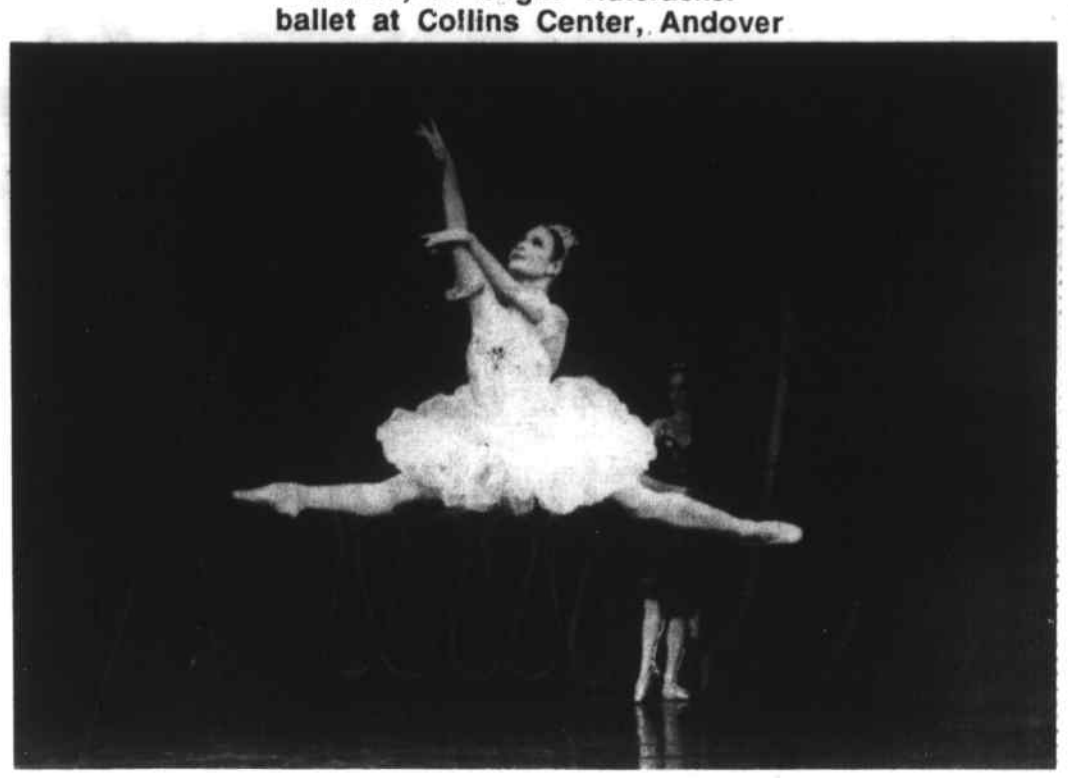

Staged after Balanchine's original choreography, this lavish, full-length production has delighted the public since 1954. The choreography offers daring solos, swirling leaps, and brilliant lifts, turns, and balances.

The "Nutcracker" Ballet is a delight for the entire family. The traditional Tchiakovsky score captures the warmth, joy, magic, and fantasy of a child's journey through a Christmas wonderland. The captivating story comes alive with magical toy soldiers, sugar-plum fairies, dancing snowflakes, mischievous mice, and a Christmas tree that grows and grows.

A total of 180 local children, selected from ballet schools throughout Mass. and N.H. will dance the children's roles. These children were chosen from over 400 ballet students who auditioned for these roles in September.

The show is staged with elaborate sets, snow, and many magical special effects. The costumes are vibrant, ranging from warm colors in the opening party scene, to soft pastels in the closing numbers.

Lavish, full-length "Nutcracker" ballet at Collins Center, Andover

"The Nutcracker" will open on Friday, Dec. 4, at 8 p.m. Other performances are scheduled on Saturday, Dec. 5 at 2 and 8 p.m.; and Sunday, Dec. 6, at 2 and 7 p.m.

Tickets, at $25, $20, and $15, are on sale now at the Collins Center box office, Shawsheen Road, Andover, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Tickets may also be purchased at all Ticketron locations. To charge tickets, call Teletron at 1-800/382-8080.

Group discounts are available. For details, call 470-1905.

Country Faire December 5

The seventh annual Red Sneakers/ Wellington School Country Faire will take place at the school, 75 Pearl Street, just off Salem Street/Route 129, Reading , on Saturday, Dec. 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Approximately 40 arts and crafts exhibitors are expected to offer their merchandise which includes Victorian period pieces, folk art, fabric items, stenciling, stained glass, candles, wreaths, dolls, wooden ware, ceramics, crochet and knitted garments, baby clothes, marbelizing and teddy bears! If you are looking for something unique for everyone on your Christmas list, you should stop by for an hour or so.

Avoid the crush at the mall - Santa will be waiting to pose for a photo with your child. Tony's Pizza will be serving food. Or you can take home scrumptious, mouth watering delights from the bake table. There will be games and craft activities for the children. Music will be provided by Kitt Cox and the Hounds.

Raffle tickets will be available at the door. Many local merchants have provided merchandise--a decorated Christmas wreath from Eric's Greenhouse, a holiday fruit basket from Colarusso's, two pair of sunglasses from Family Opticians, a facial from Reading esthetician Paula Pirello, dinner at Wes Parker's, a photo session at Jamesway Studios, 25 ice cream cones from Brighams, a floral arrangement from Village Flower Shop, a meal at International House of Pancakes, bags from the Evergreen Bag Company, a free oil and lube from Sunoco Car Care Center as well as gift certificates from the Children's Shop, Marshall's, Hair Plus and Career Life. And three visits to Slender You to work off those holiday excesses. And to light up your home for the holiday - your choice of a tree from Russell Farms.

This school event is the major fundraising activity for the year and promises to be even bigger and better this year. Everyone is cordially invited to go and enjoy the fair on Saturday, Dec. 5.

Wilmington girls finish strong

Girls U-14

The Wilmington girls U-14 travel team's season came to an abrupt end this past weekend as their last game against Lincoln became a forfeit win for Wilmington, since the Lincoln team did not show due to extremely cold weather conditions.

Prior to this weekend's deep freeze, the girls lost a 1-0 heartbreaker to division leading Melrose. The following week, they travelled to Wakefield where they rebounded for a 2-1 win.

The girls have played extremely well this season, especially for a new team comprised of girls from four different spring teams. They have compiled an excellent record of 7-2-1 in a very competitive division. The only losses were to a very strong Melrose team which posted a 10-0 record this season.

The Melrose game was a very tough loss for the Wilmington girls, as they attempted to avenge their only loss of the first half season.

What made it even worse was that both teams had battled to a scoreless tie, and then with less than a minute to go in the game, Melrose scored the game winner.

The whole team played a super game, especially the defense, as they shutout the relentless Melrose attack until the waning moments of the game.

The defense was led by Jennifer Rago, who played a great game at sweeper, and fullbacks Tina Kelly, and Ann Marie Barletta also had very good games. The backbone of the defense was Stacey Ouellette who played an outstanding game in goal as she made 28 saves.

Although forwards Julie Robinson, Gina DiSantis and Stacy LaCorcia had good scoring opportunities, the Melrose defense shut them out.

The halfback corps of Joy Michaud, Ellen DeHoff, Toby Kenney and Marissa Volpe played a very strong game.

The Wakefield game started out as though it would be a relatively easy game, as the offense scored two quick goals. However, Wakefield toughened up and did not allow another goal while scoring one of their own early in the second half to make the game a seat squirmer.

Although the Wilmington forwards had several good shots on goal, particularly in the second half, the Wakefield goaltender made some great saves to keep the game tight.

The first half was all Wilmington, as the forwards and halfbacks kept constant pressure on the Wakefield goal, but could only connect on two of their many shots.

Wilmington opened the scoring only minutes into the game, as Gina DiSantis scored on a pass from Alyssa Falzone.

The second goal came minutes later as Alyssa Falzone scored on a nifty feed from Julie Robinson.

The second half was a nailbiter, as Wakefield scored on a long range shot and narrowed the gap to 2-1.

Although both teams had many good scoring chances, neither could connect due to great saves by both goaltenders, particularly Stacey Ouellette, who once again played a solid game in goal.

The defense did a great job in spite of being shorthanded at both the fullback and halfback positions.

Ann Marie Barletta was solid at sweeper, a new position for her. Fullbacks Tina Kelly, Tara Landers ,and Sarah Callahan, and halfbacks Marissa Volpe, Ellen DeHoff and Toby Kenney all played great games, particularly since they played the entire game with little or no substitutions.

Boys' and girls under seven

Care Bears vs Muppets

John Betts was the lone goal scorer for the Care Bears with outstanding performances by teammates Megan Sullivan, Jamie Jordan and Jim Martianetti.

Players who played well for the Muppets included Kevin Finnerty, Kenny Chin and Matthew Carroll.

Fraggles vs Transformers

Ryan Covino was the goal scorer for the Transformers with a strong team effort led by Jason Harris, Christopher Cassidy and Nicole DeBlois.

Sean Cahill scored for the Fraggles, with outstanding contributions by Douglas Burns, Jeffrey Connor, Timmy Connor, Mark Foley, Karen Hardy, Derek Mazza and Kenneth Stokes.

Flintstones vs Smurfs

Matthew Greenstein put forth a tremendous scoring effort, with three goals for the Flintstones and outstanding efforts from teammates Lauren McCarthy, Eric Hiltz, Kevin Bournoit, Kevin Gillespie and Brian Binkoski.

Michael Maynard and Kevin Riley put the Smurfs on the scoreboard with excellent performances from Randy Peach and Ralph Sirignano.

Boys' under eight

Bears vs Patriots

David Ward with two goals and Marka DiGiovanni with one goal led the Bears to victory. Good goaltending by Anthony Forester and fine defensive play by Glen Brewer and Greg Moran.

Goal scorer for the Patriots was David Senarian and outstanding game contributions were made by Brian Godin, Don Berube and Ken Branley.

Dolphins vs Oilers

Outstanding effort by Michael Gennetti resulted in two goals for the Dolphins, with fine play by Chris Burns, Eric Powers, Joshua Bulger and Nick Lepore.

Players who played well for the Oilers included Peter Vachon, Matt Marchesi, Matt Kacamburqas, Matt Rowe and Jonathan Coughlin.

Girls' under 10

Madonnas vs Cinderellas

Jill Lojek (two), Julie Gills (two), Tracy Reitchell (one) and Cheryl Delascio (one) scored for the Cinderellas with a strong team effort by Amy Surran, Doris Radieclivek, Tara Stone, Heidi Rice and Stacy.

The goal scorers for the Cinderellas were Sarah Powers unassisted from a goal kick and Lindsay Gennetti assisted by Kristen Hall. Players who played well included Sarah Powers, Lauren Carter, Jeannine Plunket, Meghan Birmingham, Liz Bickford, Jennifer O'Neil and Kristen Hall.

Injured player Lindsey Bickford sat on the sidelines and cheered for the team. Great team spirit, Lindsey !

Bon Jovis vs Springsteins

Julie Stokes and April Ryan scored twice for the Bon Jovis and Rence Vachon also scored for the team. Players who also played well included Emily King, Kristin Roache, Megan Falzone and Teri Laquidara.

Michelle White was the Springsteins' goal scorer, with outstanding play by Kristen Peach, Janet Gustafson and Jamie Gustafson.

Boys' under 11

Spartans vs Blue Demons

Two goals were scored by Charlie Ross for the Blue Demons, with able assistance from teammates Eric Morin, Greg Young and Joey Perez.

Jeff Driscoll and Sean Flores led the attack for the Spartans with one goal each with help from outstanding players Chris Graves, Billie Nitchie, Brian Thresher and Alex Athanassiou.

Fighting Irish vs Boilermakers

Jeremy Antounuk put forth a tremendous effort with three goals for the Fighting Irish, with fine team play by Charlie Rice, Costa Radosavlyvic and David Peddle.

Another super season

Tewksbury High School senior Marc Paglia (8) leads his team upfield in the final game of the season. The Redmen enjoyed another banner year, winning another MVC Small School championship and qualifying for a tournament berth. See story and other photos on page 15 of the sports section.

Tewksbury freshmen football

Redmen complete perfect season

The Tewksbury High School freshmen football team played its' final game at Wilmington last Friday, beating the Wildcats, 28-0 to complete a perfect 9-0-0 season.

Halfback Dan Gillette led all scorers on the day, scoring a pair of second quarter touchdowns to preserve Tewksbury's unbeaten record, with only the cancellation of the Andover game leaving the Redmen to wonder whether they could have been the best in the MVC.

Tewksbury got on the scoreboard early in the opening quarter as halfback Sean Mackey broke away for a 35 yard touchdown. Mackey also carried for the conversion points, and Tewksbury led 8-0.

The Tewksbury defense that allowed only 58 points all season, continually hampered Wilmington from generating any consistency in their offense and the Wildcats were forced to punt the ball away.

Early into the second quarter, Tewksbury's quarterback Kevin Merritt brought his team down to the Wilmington five when Gillette got the call off tackle and Tewksbury now led 14-0 as the extra point attempt was in vain.

Spirited by quad-captain Sean Conley, the Tewksbury defense shutdown the Wildcats' offense, forcing Wilmington to turn the ball over again and again.

The intensity of this traditional rivalry showed on the faces of both teams, as time and again they traded blows, with Tewksbury taking the edge when again Gillette got the nod for another Tewksbury score and a 20-0 halftime lead.

Tewksbury received the opening kickoff of the second half, with Tim Lightfoot bringing it back 75 yards for the score only to have it called back on a clipping penalty.

Once again Tewksbury was on the move, as the combination running attack of Sean Rogers, Gillette and Joe Centrella moved the ball upfield. It was Centrella who capped off Tewksbury's scoring with a pretty 45 yard touchdown when he broke outside on a simple dive play. Gillette carried for the extra points and Tewksbury left Wilmington the victor.

In retrospect, Tewksbury dominated most teams on the year, compiling 202 offensive points, with only Billerica coming close to upsetting the Redmen's dream of a perfect record.

Sean Mackey led all scorers on the year with eight touchdowns and five conversion points. Tim Lightfoot had seven touchdowns and three conversions; Sean Conley had four touchdowns and three conversions; Matt Frietag had four touchdowns and two conversions; Dan Gillette had two touchdowns and one conversion, with Jon Harvey and Joe Centrella sharing one touchdown apiece on the year.

Quarterback Kevin Merritt scored twice himself while assisting in six touchdown passes and three conversions.

Offensively, the Redmen offensive line of Jon Harvey, Marc Whynot, Brian Brooks, Andy DeFelice, Bob Borrasso, Paul Mottolo and Matt Frietag, along with backups Bill Sharkey and John Marshall, were responsible for quarterback Merritt's protection and the opening of many holes this season.

Defensively, Conley, Borrasso, Frietag, Lightfoot and defensive ends Brooks and Harvey badgered many of the opposing offense they faced, with DeFelice and Sharkey

TMHS soccer

Redmen soccer tradtition growing

The 1987 Tewksbury High School boys' varsity soccer season came to a stinging end Sunday, Nov. 15 when the Bulldogs from Lynn English held off the Redmen for a 4-2 victory in the Eastern Massachusetts' Division II North quarterfinal game.

Although the season was over, Tewksbury had again come through with another successful season, a season that not only had a varisty team with a record of 14-4-2, but a junior varsity squad with an 11-3-4 record. The Tewksbury first year freshmen team also added to an optimistic future with a 6-5-1 slate.

The regular season came to an end with the Redmen travelling to Haverhill and defeating the Hillies by a 3-1 count. The game was spiced up with the Redmen playing different positions right from the start, thus adding a little excitement to a game that in reality could have been a blow out.

Jim Pollard off a great pass from midfielder Billy Martin gave the Redmen a 1-0 lead, while team leading scorer Derek Doherty scored the last two goals on an unselfish pass from Marc Paglia on one goal, and a clearing pass from back Joe Seely on the other score.

Haverhill scored on a six yard indirect kick during the last two minutes of the game to close out the scoring. Martin and stopperback Ronny Perrin were outstahding all game long for the Redmen.

On Tuesday, November 3, the Redmen closed out their non-conference schedule with a home field 1-1 tie with Billerica. Both goals in the game were scored by the Redmen, as a pass back to an open net gave the Indians the lead with a minute to go in the first half, and another game saving goal by Derek Doherty on a pass from Ronnie Perrin gave the Redmen a tie. As in all the Redmen's losses and ties this year, Tewksbury dominated the major part of play, but could not find the range on several opportunistic goal scoring chances.

Tewksbury drew a tough first round tournament game when it hosted Salem on Sunday, Nov. 8. Salem, although only 9-5-4, came from the tough Northeast League, a league which had six teams qualify for the tournament. Salem came out fast, but it was the Redmen who capitalized first.

Senior Tim Quinn, runner up to Doherty by one point in the team scoring race, put the first goal in at 14.23 after he converted a Jeff Stone pass. Stone had stolen the ball off the foot of a Salem defender to start the play.

Final game

TMHS junior Jim Pollard boots the ball to a teammate in the 4-2 tournament loss to Lynn English. Pollard and the Redmen had another super MVC soccer season.

Seven minutes later junior Tommy Walsh scored off a scramble out in front of the Salem net to give the Redmen a 2-0 lead.

Salem took advantage of a standing flat direct kick defense to make he score 2-1 two minutes before halftime.

The second half saw Salem dominating the first 20 minutes with no result thanks to great play on the part of sweeperback Marc Paglia and good, aggressive goalkeeping by Dan Fiore.

The final 15 minutes of the game turned toward the Redmen as they applied constant pressure to the tiring Salem defense, finally icing the game on a Derek Doherty penalty kick with nine and one-half minutes to go in the game. Doherty ended any doubt of a possible Salem comebqck less than two minutes later when he took a Ron Perrin pass and worked his way by two defenders, finally placing the ball in the far upper corner of the net. Salem scored on a second direct kick with five minutes to go to close out the final 4-2 Redmen victory.

Snow would three times postpone the Redmen quarterfinal game versus another Northeast League team, Lynn English. The Bulldogs, whose record going into the game was identical to that of the Redmen, 14-3-2, left with the win, which eventually advanced them to the final of the Division II North final.

The Redmen played hard, but with many offensive and defensive lapses, found themselves on the short end of a 4-2 score. The ball was primarily in the Lynn English end of the field most of the game, but too much dribbling, or too many passes, or too few shots or too many misplaced shots all contributed to allowing the scoring chances for Lynn English.

Lynn English would break a 1-1 tie with a goal 15 seconds after the Redmen tied the game on a goal by Timmy Quinn off a backheader pass from Derek Heartquist.

Then in a span of less than four minutes two unanswered goals gave the Bulldogs a 4-1 lead. Tewksbury scored with 11 minutes to go with Marc Paglia blasting in a shot off a pass from senior Brian Anderson.

The Redmen had several opportunities to close the gap to one, but were disappointed by shots flying to either side or over the net.

Redmen accomplishments for 1987 included their fourth straight, and fifth in six years, MVC Small School championship; their fourth straight tournament appearance and their seventh in their last eight

When asked what stood out in their minds about this year's season, Tewksbury coach Ernie Lightfoot said; "this team has had a great year in which to prove its' worth as a group of individuals working as a complete unit."

They showed it at Billerica when defeat was at their doorstep, and hopefully, they will all remember that victory along with many other great games that they played. "We hope they become great players in the future and wish them continued success both on and off the field," offered Lightfoot. "They are truly a great bunch of kids."

BUNIONS
WHAT CAN BE DONE?

A bunion is a painful aggravating bump along the inside of the big toe joint and is usually associated with a crooked toe. The problem is "structural" in nature and can be corrected. Some recent technology and many years of research by Foot-Specialists-Podiatrists, have given us procedures and methods that result in excellent relief and long term correction.

Corrective procedures range from simple removal of the bump and realignment of the big toe, to more sophisticated procedures involving the realignment of bony structures. These procedures aim for long term correction, minimal post-operative discomfort and early recovery.

These procedures are done under local anesthesia on an out-patient basis in either the office or hospital.

If you have any questions about a bunion problem that you might have, please feel free to call and talk with one of our doctors. We look foward to serving you.

Outdoors Column

"Let's be careful out there..."

by Bill Conlon

Deer in Massachusetts will be staring down the business end of shotguns starting Monday at dawn, but a recent incident in Maine underscores the need for caution in the hunting woods.

Hunting is one of the safest things you can do in the woods, believe it or not, but accidents do happen. Take the sad case of Tom Bachman of Wilmington.

Tom was hunting in the deep woods of Maine last week when he was accidently shot and killed, and a Maryland man stands charged with manslaughter in the incident.

Details of the shooting are still sketchy, since the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife refuses to release information which may be prejudicial to the case, but Dennis Reynolds, 26, of Elkton, Maryland, awaits trial on manslaughter charges in relation to the shooting. Only one bullet was fired, but it was one too many.

Bachman was the third fatality in Maine this year, but Maine DIFW spokesman Paul Fournier said the sport is much safer now than it was.

In the 1950s, Fournier said, Maine saw some 150,000 hunters take to the fields every deer season. Twice in that decade, he said, there were years with 19 fatal shootings each.

But times have changed, and for the better. Now that Maine has a bucks-only deer hunting season, gunners must "put antlers" on their targets before firing, which helps keep itchy trigger fingers in check.

Another safety measure is the state law in Maine that requires at least one piece of blaze orange clothing which is visible from all directions. Massachusetts requires a minimum of 500 square inches of hunter orange on the head, chest and back, but Maine only calls for a single, visible piece.

Finally, Fournier said, hunter safety classes have drilled safety into the heads of thousands of gunners.

The net result is a dramatic increase in hunter safety, according to Fournier. He said last year, for example, there were only two fatalities, but the number of deer hunters today is near 250,000!

And in 1985, he said, there were no fatal shootings at all!

Still, the tale of Tom Bachman bears retelling. Accidents happen, but most accidents can be avoided.

A few rules are worth keeping in mind as you load up with slugs after this weekend:

First -- Make damn sure of your target. Not only must you put antlers on the deer, but it's also wise to look past the critter, to be absolutely certain of your backstop. That slug is going to end up somewhere. Know where.

Second -- No drugs, no drinks, no kidding!

Third -- Wear lots of hunter orange. The stuff is visible for miles, and even fading light won't stop the glow. It works!

Fourth, Fifth and Six -- (and this makes me more furious than anyone will ever know):

No sound shooting ! ! ! !

As staggering as the thought may be, there are idiots out there who will open fire on a convincing rustle or movement in the leaves. These armed imbeciles -- I'll never call them hunters -- will take a shot at what only sounds like a deer, without waiting to see it.

Heaven help us all.

Hard experience has proven to me that a walking deer sounds exactly like a walking man. Last season, in fact, I came a finger's twitch away from disaster.

Hunting a wooded hillside in New Hampshire, I could hear footsteps in the snow, approching me from behind. I was following a well-used deer trail up the hillside, and I figured the critter was following the same route, straight toward me. A thick stand of cedars separated us, so I took up a position with my rifle trained on the trees and waited for the deer to emerge.

The sound of crunching snow got louder, and I got itchy, waiting to see the antlers. Nothing emerged, so I held my fire and kept waiting. The sound became so loud that the deer could have poked its nose through the cedars at any second. Still I waited.

But the footsteps finally stopped, then started moving away. When the sound of crunching show faded away completely, and after some colorful swearing, I went over to check the tracks. To my horror I found fresh boot prints instead of hoof marks!

God help us, but there are morons out there who would have opened up. The sound almost convinced me, but I couldn't see and wouldn't shoot. And that was as close as I've ever come to tragedy.

If your friend says he took a "sound shot," walk away and leave him where he stands, and never go into the woods with him again.

Hunting is not a dangerous sport, unless some idiot makes it so. A quarter of a million semi-trained drivers on the road will result in more fatalities than a quarter-million hunters in any forest, but it takes only one instant of stupidity to make all the newspapers.

Unfortunately, Tom Bachman of Wilmington won't be around to help us argue that point anymore.

One of America's favorite (if fictional) cops perhaps said it best: "Let's be careful out there."

-- Tackle Box --

Sorry kids, but I'm deer hunting out in the Barre area, near the Quabbin Reservoir. I'll see you at the check station!

Pilcher selected

Middlesex League President Thomas Jones of Woburn, recently announced the selection of the Hockey Pee Wee All Star team, the Middlesex Selects, better known as the Boston Jr. Braves.

"It was a very difficult choice this year," head coach Dan Walsh commented. "Sixty talented 13-year-old boys from the Greater Boston Area were competing for only 18 positions," Walsh continued, "and we had a tough time narrowing it down. The League's coaches should be commended for their work in preparing these young hockey players."

The final roster includes Mike Pilcher from Wilmington; Jason Gerry and Jay McGilvary of Woburn; Dennis Burke and Charles Haley from Newton; Kurt Nystrom and Jamie Thompson from Framingham; Shane Ronan and John Tighe from Arlington; Jamie Venezia from Watertown; Chris Itri, Terry Long and Mark Pittman from South Boston, and Eric Butler, Kevin Cassell, Brian Dean, Mark Mortarelli and alternate Davey Hoffman from Natick.

The Braves will be competing with five other Select teams from Eastern Mass. during the next few months and will represent the Greater Boston Youth Hockey League at an International Pee Wee Hockey Tournament in Quebec City in February 1988.

The Quebec tournament was founded in 1960 to provide youngsters from many nations with the opportunity to meet and form friendships in a sporting tournament. Proceeds are given to a youth organization known as "Patro Roc-Amadour." The team will be playing before 15,300 spectators at the Coliseum and the games will be televised throughout Canada.

Coach Walsh will be assisted by Bob Chebator, Mike Walsh, George Boudreau and Brad Michals. The team will be soliciting contributions in an effort to raise the $20,000 needed for the Quebec trip. Community support is needed.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending November 24, Wilmington police officers responded to 17 accidents, one fire, 36 alarms, seven disturbances, four break and entries and six larcenies.

Other departments were assisted 11 times, medical assistance was rendered on five occasions, 17 arrests and three protective custody detentions were made, one vehicle was reported stolen, 2 lock outs reported, 2 missing persons were reported, 12 incidents of suspicious activity were investigated, two assaults were checked out and five domestic problems were quieted.

Four liquor related complaints were made along with one threat complaint, one trespassing complaint and two involving trailbikes. Nine incidents of vandalism are still under investigation.

Arrests

Wednesday morning, November 18, Officer Jim White arrested Richard Moore of East Meadow Lane, Lowell on the basis of a Malden police warrant. He was turned over to Malden officers.

Officer Joe Waterhouse arrested a Bedford man Wednesday night on a default warrant. Martin Smirth of Springs Road was held on two warrants, one from Stow and one from Maynard police.

Two men were arrested in separate incidents by Officer Jim White at 1:15 a.m. Thursday morning. Thomas Cogan of Lowell Street, Wakefield was arrested on the basis of a default warrant issued by Methuen police. He was releaased to Methuen officers to appear in Lawrence Court.

Slightly more than two hours later, Officer White arrested a Winchester man. Paul Hamel of Taft Road, Winchester was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. Hamel was also charged with possession of a class D substance, believed to be marijuana.

Thursday evening Officer Jon Shepard arrested two Woburn youths on liquor charges. Antonio Damato, 18 of Wood Street and James Pettrillo, 18 of Westgate Drive were both charged with underage possession of alcohol.

A traffic stop early Friday morning led to the arrest of two men, one from Burlington and one from Waltham. Officers Jim White and Lary Juergens, assisted by Tom Miller made the arrests. Barry McGrory, 30, of 271 Newton Street, Apt. 2, Waltham was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. A passenger was first placed under protective custody, then after discovering a quantity of what appeared to be cocaine, he was charged with a drug offense.

Bruce Toland, 44 of 346 Cambridge Street, Burlington was charged with trafficking in cocaine, a controlled class B substance. Also seized was $226 in cash found on the subject. Both men were held at the police station and taken directly to Woburn Court Friday morning.

At 9:30 a.m. Friday, Officer James Patterson arrested Lee D. Ayers, 50 Arlington St., Leominster on a default warrant out of Leicester. (larceny by check).

Less than an hour later Officer Hancock arrested Michael Banfield, 18 of 529 Main St., and John D. Cantwell of 106 Main Street, both of Wilmington on a charge of being minors in possession of alcohol.

At 3:39 a.m. Saturday, Officer Hancock arrested Christopher MacKinnon, 22 of 360 Beelzebub Road, South Windsor, Conn., for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of an alcoholic beverage.

Officer Chalifour arrested Thomas Grady, 21 of 16 Cordis Street, Charlestown early Saturday morning for possession of a class D substance.

Sunday at 1:52 a.m., Officer Chalifour arrested Kacie Kenney of 55 Cunningham Street, Wilmington for a default warrant out of Reading.

Bradford Gilley, Jr. of 167B Main St., Plaistow, N.H. was arrested early Monday morning by Groveland police on a default warrant out of Woburn District Court. He was picked up by Insp. Celata and taken directly to Woburn Court.

Sgt. Duffy and Officer Fiore arrested Robert Mitchell of Lillybrook Road, and Michael Albert of 2 Cape Drive, both of Hudson, N.H. early Tuesday morning. The pair was charged with larceny of a motor vehicle. Investigation showed that there are two outstanding warrants on Michael Albert out of Billerica and Waltham.

Therapeutic social Dec. 17

The December Council of Aging therapeutic social will be held Thursday evening December 17 in the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks Hall. A roast turkey dinner with all the trimmings will be served at 7 p.m. Music for dancing will be provided by the big band sounds of Chet Harnden. A $2.00 non-refundable deposit will be required when signing up.

Pick up letter

Those who have not picked up one of each letter to political represenatives in Washington, Senator Edward Kennedy, Senator John Kerry and Congressman Edward Markey, the time is closing in on when it will be too late. Wilmington seniors can join the rest of the seniors throughout the country objecting strongly to the administration chopping away little by little at our Social Security and Medicare. Many elders before us fought very hard under the leadership of Claude Pepper in Washington and Frank Manning, president of the Older Americans to get the senior citizens, upon retiring, a decent livable income through Social Security and medical coverage through Medicare. Don't let them have worked in vain for us.

In the coming year you will see your Social Security check shrink with the increase in Medicare insurance from $17.00 to $38.00. You will see less and less of your medical treatment being covered through your Medicare. This is being slipped in through early release from hospitals by the DRG's system of payment. What is the DRG's? It is a set payment by the Medicare board of doctors as to what the treatment should cost, by doctors and hospitals. You will also see in-home nursing care almost eliminated.

All these abuses can be stopped if you make your objections to the politicians. To do this pick up these three letters, sign them and mail them as soon as you can. If you say let someone else do it, you may, in a year or so, wish you had.

Fair Saturday, Nov. 28

The arts and crafts fair will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., in the Buzzell Senior Center, 15 School St., on the hill opposite the common. Tables will be set up for crafts of all types, baked goods, white elephant, and chances on beautiful articles of all kinds. A spaghetti dinner will be served throughout the afternoon on Saturday starting at 12:30 p.m.

Drop articles at the Center

Anyone who has any articles made for the fair may take them to the center any day Monday - Saturday. Those with no way of getting them there should call the center and they will be picked up. We need as many things as we can get to fill the tables. It is the hope of the committee to make this fair the most successful. To accomplish this goal your donations of craft articles or baked goods for the tables and desserts for the dinner will be greatly appreciated, but the most important ingredient for success is your appearance at the fair with family and friends.

Podiatrist, November 27

Doctor Leavitt, podiatrist, will be at the Center on Friday, Nov. 27. He will be checking and treating ailments of the feet. The doctor will remain at the Center long enough to see those waiting for him. His appointments will start at 9 a.m.

Thanks to volunteers

I extend my thanks to the many volunteers who help me with the catered holiday dinners we delivered to 70 of our senior shut-ins last Friday morning. With the number of thank you calls I have received it was a labor of love so much appreciated. We also thank the manager of the Flower Stop for his generous donation of flowers that were sent to the shut-ins with a meal. Thanksgiving will mean much more to all of us.

This young woman truly is amazing

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

As Princess Nite Owl of Cheektowaga, she's billed in the latest "Wrestling All Stars" as the "fighting female who gives a hoot, one of the strongest women in pro wrestling today." As Mary Ann Tortorella of Woburn, she's the recent recipient of a Christa McAuliffe Teacher Incentive Grant for superior academic achievement. She's also a professional entertainer, scholar, teacher, artist, nurse, vice president, composer, counselor and philosopher.

The world according to Tortorella is complex, multi-dimensional, and a little scary. She sits still, for the moment, surrounded by certificates and letters of honor, photos, homework, sketches, schedules, magazine layouts, tapes, musical compositions, poems become songs. Dramatic make-up, large, warm brown eyes, perfect nails; a ready laugh, a quick smile, she doesn't miss a thing. Multiply talented, she's in between work and work, eager to talk about anything, at the same time relaxed. And 26 years old.

Multi-talented Mary Ann Tortorella

As a young singer, dancer, composer, actress, performer, she often found herself in New York, driving alone, going from club to club. "It was dangerous," she says. "So I thought to myself 'well, I'm not out to kill anybody but I would like to at least get myself into a position where I could protect myself.' I started taking martial arts courses. I did demonstrations, breaking boards with my feet and I really loved it."

Her instructors did too; noticed her speed, agility, strength, determination in class; encouraged her to think about wrestling, to begin weight training. "I was extremely physical anyway so I loved it, even getting body-slammed," she says. "As sensitive as I am, I have this incredible need to do strong physical things.

"Wrestling is very artistic," she says, "if you're really wrestling. I don't mean entertaining. I mean wrestling. It takes a lot of concentration, dedication and sweating. But first and foremost, it takes common sense. No matter now intelligent you may be, you need a very high level of common sense to survive. A genius without common sense steps on his or her own toes.

"Wrestling can be dangerous," she continues. "Obviously as a sport but especially when, if someone is bothering you or someone you love for no particular reason, your reflexes take over. I resort to karate if I need to defend myself, then to wrestling. I take instruction — for defense and protection but also for the ar-

Tidbits of America

FM TALK: Our gallivanting-around correspondent is away for the Thanksgiving holiday; until his return we have another edition of off-beat tidbits on Amerian history to keep you busy:

In "The Americans: The Democratic Experience," by Daniel Boorstin, it is revealed that, in 1647, New England Puritans ordered that all marriage ceremonies be conducted by civil magistrates, and that no preaching would be allowed. The Puritans believed, like Martin Luther, that marriage was primarily a secular institution, and that the church should not be involved. By the end of the century, however, they relaxed their point of view and once again marriages were performed in churches and ministers were permitted to preach at the ceremonies.

In Boorstin's book, he also noted that, in 1659, a law was passed banning the celebration of Christmas. The law provided a fine of five shillings for anybody caught abstaining from work and feasting on that day. The Puritans repealed the law 22 years later, because they believed no one would observe the holiday. This remained the case until the mid-19th century, at which time Christmas became a major holiday.

If members of the legal profession think they face a great deal of hostility these days, they should have lived in 17th-century America. In 1641, the Massachusetts legislature passed a law prohibiting lawyers from earning money by defending somebody in court. Seventeen years later, Virginia lawmakers actually adopted a law which expelled lawyers from the colony! Finally, in 1680, these laws were repealed and members of the legal profession were permitted to practice in courtrooms.

The Puritans were frequently blamed for everything that went wrong in America, but colonial men knew what they were doing when they carried on the old English tradition of marrying a woman who was nude or in her underwear. According to tradition, if the bride wore nothing or just her underwear, then the groom was not responsible for her prenuptial debts. To preserve decency, many of these marriages were performed at night. According to Alice Morse Earle, who wrote "Customs and Fashions in Old New England," there is no record of whether creditors accepted this tradition.

The New York Times, on March 31, 1976, published an interesting article on the so-called witches of 17th-century Salem. The article focused on the particular trial of 19 men

Toastmasters are a varied group

By JIM ROUILLARD

They may count ahs — but they don't count many.

They provide timer, word-master and table topics and — when they aren't turning the table on each other — they are perfectly willing to hang on your every word.

There is, in short, a small but nifty corps of local spellbinders who are hard at work hereabouts.

They may include a female sargeant-at-arms, a male jokemaster, an "ah," "er," and "um" counter — and an array of evaluators from both sexes who stand ready to help you.

WIFE VERSUS HUSBAND: Married team of Toastmasters Janet and Jon Hosking competed against each other, in a sense, at the last meeting of Eastern Middlesex Toastmasters Club. But the North Reading couple received a tie vote for best speaker/toastmaster of the week, so they jointly received the club's revolving trophy — which they ended up forgetting to take home.

Twice a month they gather, to convince or dissuade, bring you to poignancy and laughter and, in a process which is sheer fun, assist you in honing poise, executive ability and effective communication skills in an exciting, diverting, delightful way. These local men and women are so skilled, in fact, that they can fascinate with impromptu talks on subjects of which they know little or nothing, amuse with a quip about bleaching zebras, or bind with a moving tale of "the thankful straws."

But they are also very supportive, human and undaunting, and can help you learn to do what they themselves do, so magically and with such little apparent effort.

They are the Eastern Middlesex chapter of Toastmasters International. They meet every other Monday evening at 7 p.m. at the Stoneham Public Library. But they come from many places.

They include a North Reading woman who is director of education for her church, a Wakefield animal rights activist, and a mechanical engineer from Reading who may arrive at meetings on bike or motorcycle, suited and tied, ready to slip into dress shoes for his presentation before the audience.

And what an audience it is — for it's a situation in which speakers themselves become the attending critics — and vice versa — in a group composed of careful, firm, and kindly constructive listeners.

An evening spent with Toastmasters, in fact, makes it abundantly clear that these men and women have built a high degree of quality and mutual respect within their organization — as they gamely and gallantly accept criticism from each other to help improve their several speaking, thinking, executive and social skills.

Yet despite the fact that Toastmaster meetings are essentially devoted to work and accomplishment, the group manages, oddly, to create a timespace combining relaxation with exuberance — for a thoroughly absorbing experience which is at once both stimulating and laid-back. The causes for this success are hard to define — but it may suffice to say that the evening was so engaging for this writer that he completely forgot to take photos afterward.

A survey of individual members yielded a variety of reasons for interest in the club. For Catherine Hsu of Reading, for whom Chinese is her mother tongue, Toastmasters has improved her study and grasp of English, and helped improve her teaching at Reading's Creative Arts program.

For Charlie Tedoldi of Burlington, the compleat jokemaster who protests that trying to get him to be formal is like trying to bleach a zebra's stripes, the club provides the chance to exercise and improve an already warm ability to welcome, inform and amuse.

For engineer and guest Mark Hudson of Wakefield — whose work at New England Telephone may involve addressing various groups — an interest in Toastmasters comes from an essential and general long-standing interest in effective communication.

And for Janet Hosking of North Reading, Toastmasters offers the chance to try out church presentations, like the tale of "The Thankful Straws" with which she illustrated the beauty of gratitude in a simple, gripping and moving way.

Hosking's skill in speaking, in fact, earned her a tied vote for best speaker of the week and, thereby, possession of half the traveling trophy for that honor until the Toastmasters' next meeting, set for December 7. She tied, by the way, with husband Jon Hosking, who is also the club's vice president — so the trophy managed to travel intact.

Toastmasters International, according to the Toastmaster Magazine, was organized in

tistic form and challenge."

"I've always heard 'well, she's a jack-of-all-trades, master of none' and that's garbage," she says. "My objective is to be a master of most, to do exceptionally well what I love most and to do very well what I don't have as much time for. Time is the key factor. You can be and do anything you want if you have the time — or make the time."

Time is her essence, a commodity as precious as any wealth. "To be able to do all I do and to always do it better, I budget my time," she says. "When do I sleep? Maybe I could do a very quick rundown of how I don't." It goes something like this: take the 168 hours in a week, deduct 56 for sleeping (often less), 40 for that first job (respite nursing, 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.), 20 for part-time work (teaching, counseling), 15 for school (education, music, theater), 15 for study (more when you subtract sleep), 12 for socializing (Friday and Saturday nights); the rest to "do what you want" (wrestling, creating, growing).

Tortorella can account for her every minute. By day, she's student and teacher. "I'm in school full-time," she says. "I graduated from Bunker Hill Community College with a straight 4.0 and I'm certified as a mental health worker. I have only six more classes left at Salem State and plan to attend graduate school at Lesley College with a major in special education and a minor in business."

She teaches special needs and gifted children one and a half days a week in the Carlisle Public Schools. Subjects include art, music, recreational therapy, life skills. "I teach painting, sculpturing in clay, anything in construction," she says. "I love to pencil sketch — that's probably my favorite. I write and paint with two hands, easily and quickly. When I'm in school, I switch. That way, I can do more in a shorter time." She is also a substitute teacher in Woburn.

Weeknights, Tortorella is a nurse, certified to work privately in respite care, Medicaid and Medicare. "Right now, I'm with one child who's got muscular dystrophy," she says. "It's pretty hectic and I do a lot of therapy, the respirating machine, medications, changing, feeding, dressing, stuff I really love to do.

"I love children, whether they're gifted, special needs, whatever. I'd do the world for them. That's why I want my physical strength," she continues. "They need you, especially when they're in wheelchairs or with crutches. You have to pick them up. They want me to pick them up when they can't see the animals at Benson's over the fence. If I couldn't pick them up, I'd be crushed. If it means weight-training seven days a week and wrestling to build up strength to give them what they want, I'll do it."

Weekend time, day and night, is devoted to more work and play. As "vice president" of the Alternative Leisure Company, Tortorella now supervises the programs for special needs youngsters and young adults in which she has volunteered for years. This summer, as Director of Kid's Camp for the Lexington Recreation Department, Tortorella was in charge of the counselors and about 18 special needs kids, directing the entire group in the "Wizard of Oz."

Theater and the performing arts are her work and her pleasure. She has sung and played piano most recently at the Madison Tower Hotel in New York; in Atlantic City; and closer to home, at the Lenox, Delmonico's, Lily's at Quincy Market and the Burlington Marriott.

For the first time, she has committed herself to one band, will soon begin rehearsals as its lead singer. She will continue music theory and opera training; rock, reggae, wedding, and jazz performances; and work on an upcoming record. She also dances, acts, and performs in the ring.

The world according to Tortorella is much more than a series of loosely connected accomplishments, any one of which could be a claim to fame. "My body lags once in a while," she says, "but my brain has a tendency to just not stop. My mind is constantly working . . . it's extremely creative and most of the things I do are extemporaneous. I have yet to teach the same lesson twice. I get too bored.

"The same with wrestling," she continues. "A lot of people just stick to one move. I have to learn them all. The same with music. That's why I don't zero in on just rock or country or classical. I need to constantly rotate." She loves to cook, very seldom follows a recipe. "I need to create," she says. "I need to make something new, do something new. I'm always striving to do something that isn't there. I may get frustrated but after a while, after enough work, eventually, it seeps out from within."

Having counseled others, she's very aware of what makes her tick. "For me, there are three evils: boredom, vice and poverty," she says. "I'm not against anybody loving material things. It's the excess thereof. I could drown myself in the wrestling, cameras and lights. But then I'd lose a sense of myself and of God.

"Sometimes I take things away from myself intentionally," she says. "It's very easy, especially in a 'star' or wrestling situation to lose yourself shall we say 'within Hollywood.' You're your own best psychological laboratory. If you know who you are, you can do anything you want, be anything and anyone you want.

"People see me one day and I'm in a biker's outfit," she continues. "Next time they see me I'm wearing leopard skin, singing rock and roll on stage. And then dressed for business, working at the computer. People cannot judge me by how they've seen me look because I don't even know what will be next. But these are all part of me. You have to know yourself. That's the key."

As for priorities, she does know herself very well. "When you're giving, people give back," she says. "But people take and you have to be prepared for that. I'm not vulnerable, whatsoever. You treat people like you want to be treated. I may let things pass. I may be as good as gold but I wouldn't think twice about not being so nice. It wouldn't even phase me.

"There's not one thing that I don't love to do," she says. "My main objective is to master everything I possibly can. God has given me these gifts. I don't do drugs or alcohol, I don't smoke, but I have a lot of friends who do all kinds of things. I always look for the good. I love to party, I love social activity. Not in excess thereof. I have two loves in life — love of God and love for others, children, friends, a spouse . . . live, love and laugh!

"I'm a very, very lucky person," she says. "God's been good to me. I work hard though. The key is budgeting your time and working hard. And I'm in love, which is nice. Whether I'm on television or at the movies, volunteering or having popcorn in an arcade doesn't matter — as long as I'm happy inside. I'm not a Jesus-freak or anything like that. I'm Roman Catholic, I love God, and I pray; that's important to me. And I do take the time to stop and smell the roses."

SUPPORT GROUP FOR AREA CANCER PATIENTS, FAMILIES

As a public service, the Social Services Department at Winchester Hospital sponsors a free program for cancer patients, their families, and their friends. The group meets the first and third Wednesday of each month from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the Social Services Department. Its next meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, December 2.

Each discussion focuses on a different issue: sharing of experiences, explanations of treatment options, presentations of nutrition options, techniques to maximize the body's defenses to aid recovery, explanations of community and hospital resources available as a support system, and discussions of skills patients and their caregivers can develop.

For more information and registration, contact the Social Services Department, Winchester Hospital, 729-9000, Ext. 3104.

THE NUTCRACKER

On Saturday, December 12 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, December 13 at 3 p.m., the Winchester Ballet Theatre will present "The Nutcracker' at the Winchester High School Auditorium.

"Our seventh annual performance of 'The Nutcracker' will delight audiences of all ages," says Darlene Wigton, Director, Winchester Ballet Theatre. This traditional "Nutcracker" production is performed by adults from 25-50 in lavishly designed costumes, and features a breathtaking growing Christmas tree.

Tickets are $8 in advance, $9 at the door. For group rates, senior citizen discounts, or additional information please call 933-4976.

MASTER SINGERS

On Sunday, December 13 at 3 p.m., The Master Singers will present a European Christmas concert at the First Parish Church in Lexington, on the Battle Green at 7 Harrington Road.

The program will consist of: Respighi—"Laud to the Nativity"; Poulenc—"Christmas Motets"; Victoria—"Missa O Magnum Mysterium"; Gabrieli—double chorus pieces with the Lexington High School Chorus.

Tickets are $10; students and seniors $6. For reservations call 762-4593.

LAS VEGAS NIGHT

Temple Shalom Emeth of Burlington is hosting a Las Vegas Night on Tuesday, December 1 at the American Legion Hall, 162 Winn St. in Burlington from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. There will be refreshments and door prizes. Donation is $3. For more information call 272-5279.

CHURCH FAIR

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 127 Summer St., Lynnfield, is the place to be on Saturday, December 5 for our annual holiday fair.

Come and visit our famous craft and baked good tables — pick out books from the Used Book table — enter the raffle for the handmade quilt — and much, much more! Luncheon will be served, with a Ham and Bean supper and auction in the evening. Join us!

Coming attractions — Rummage Sale for the White Elephant lovers in the spring.

TSL

The Single Life (TSL) dance will be held Saturday, Nov. 28 from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the K of C Hall on 126 Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington (phone 942-0165). Admission is $3 members, $5 non-members.

MOTHERS OF TWINS

Founding Chapter, representing the 20 chapters of Mothers of Twins Clubs in Massachusetts, is pleased to have been one of 67 exhibitors participating in Famfare, Boston's first parents' show, held recently at Boston Park Plaza's Castle. One of our members, Eleanor Donato of Watertown and mother of two sets of twins presented a seminar at "Sibling Rivalry."

Founding Chapter will hold its monthly meeting on Monday, November 30, at 8 p.m. in the conference room at Super Stop and Shop, 279 Main St., Stoneham.

In addition to an exchange of second-hand clothing, and circulation of a library of twin-related books and pamphlets, Founding Chapter offers friendship, advice, support, and encouragement to mothers of multiple-birth children.

GOOD FAIR

Members of the Parish of the Epiphany have been working hard for several weeks to prepare for the annual Christmas Goose Fair. This year's is expected to be a particularly enjoyable event. There will be an especially large selection of hand-made gifts, Christmas decorations and hand-made items, including knitwear.

This year there will again be a gourmet cafe serving coffee, snacks and whole meals on both of the days that the fair will be open. Younger children will enjoy the Children's Fair with games and entertainment on Saturday morning.

The fair will take place at the Church of the Epiphany, 70 Church Street, Winchester on Friday, December 4 from noon to 9 p.m. It will reopen on Saturday, December 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

ERI sponsors mentor program for youth

For three young women, now settled into their senior year at Woburn High School, "what they did over summer vacation" was somewhat out of the ordinary.

Kendra Carey worked alongside Ada Barry, an attorney and Hearing Officer for the Board of Appeal of the state Insurance Division. Kendra assisted Ada in conducting insurance surcharge hearings and was part of the appellate decision making process. She also drafted appeals for Superior Court, and accompanied Ada on field hearings. In addition, Kendra spent time with Federal and State law enforcement officials, and visited several Department of Youth Services facilities.

Sue Fowler had the opportunity to go behind the scenes to experience the "real life" aspects of policing when she worked with Kathleen O'Toole, Deputy Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police. Sue did "ride alongs" in cruisers, sat in on department meetings, and attended business luncheons with state officials. Like Kendra, she also spent time with law enforcement officials, including FBI and DEA agents and members of the State Police. She came away from her experience with a much better understanding of the reality vs. the perception of police work.

Jill McCormick's look at the field of day care included not only hands-on experience working at various day care centers, but also an examination of the issues surrounding day care legislation and corporate sponsorship. Jill worked with Patricia Cronin, Assistant Secretary of Economic Affairs for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Jill's responsibilities also included staff updates and department research projects. During her summer experience, she had the opportunity to meet the Governor, state representatives and senators, and other VIPs.

The three were among 16 high school students from six communities who participated in the Career Opportunities Mentor Program (COMP), a pilot program operated this summer by Employment Resources, Inc. (ERI) of Cambridge. The program was designed to provide a link between the aspirations of motivated high school girls and the realization of their educational and career goals.

The focal point of the program was the opportunity to work for four weeks with professionally accomplished women from the Boston community, whose individual careers reflected the girls' fields of interest. These women served as "mentors" for the girls, providing direction and guidance, as well as insight and experience not normally available to high school students. It offered the students an opportunity to experience the rewards and demands of a career in their field of interest.

Additionally, three weeks were devoted to workshops on such topics as self-esteem, professional development, the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse, communication skills and educational planning, and field trips to universities, cultural institutions and other places of interest.

Candidates were nominated by teachers and guidance counselors, and final selections were made by COMP staff. Regarding selection criteria, COMP Director, Patricia M. Stearns, said "We worked closely with high school educators to develop a candidate profile. We were seeking young women who displayed motivation, responsibility, common sense and potential, and who the schools felt would most benefit from involvement in COMP at this point in their lives."

According to ERI President Elizabeth Haskell, "We felt that COMP was a worthwhile project, and we are committed to seeking corporate and foundation funding to make the opportunity available again next year. It has helped these young women develop self-confidence, and has made a difference in what they envision for themselves once they leave the high school environment."

In the words of one participant, "It has helped me to realize that my dream is one that I want to come true, not just remain a dream."

WOBURN HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS Kendra Carey and Jill McCormack were recently honored at a reception for the students and mentors of the Employment Resources, Inc. Career Opportunities Mentor Program. The ceremony, hosted by the Charles Hotel in Cambridge, marked the end of the 1987 pilot program that placed 16 high school girls from six communities with women "mentors" from the Boston area. Sue Fowler, who also participated in the program, was unable to attend the reception due to the scheduling of a soccer awards banquet.

10 tips to keep your home smelling great

1. Put sachets under sofa and chair cushions. When you or guests sit down, wafts of fragrance will be released.

2. Use scented candles to create more than a dramatic mood.

3. Line drawers with scented paper, or make sachets. Soak cotton with a favorite cologne, tie it in a discarded nylon stocking and place between layers of clothes. For maximum effect, change every two months.

4. Carpeting traps smoke, cooking, and pet odors. Use a carpet deodorizer like Static Guard Carpet and Room Deodorizer before vacuuming. This ultra-fine powder instantly eliminates odors and leaves a light, clean scent.

5. Place small drops of peppermint oil (available at drug stores) on flame-proof chips. Put the chips on top of light bulbs. The heat from the bulbs will cause the peppermint scent to gently fill the air.

6. Always keep an open box of baking soda in the refrigerator to keep food tasting and smelling fresh.

7. Sprinkle bottom of kitty litter box and ash trays with Static Guard Carpet and Room Deodorizer. It will absorb and neutralize unpleasant odors. Change weekly.

8. Rub kitchen counters and wood surfaces with lemons (cut in half). Let sit overnight. Rinse off with warm water.

9. Don't leave dirty dishes in sink. Throw out pizza boxes, egg shells, cheese wrappers, etc. immediately after use.

10. Crush leftover lemon or orange peels and rinds in garbage disposal. If you don't have a disposal, grate rinds and leave in small dishes around kitchen.

ROVING From S-1

and women who were found guilty of practicing witchcraft and hanged. According to modern-day research, these so-called witches, who were charged with having "seen the devil at work," may actually have been experiencing the effects of an hallucinogen called ergot, akin to LSD, which may have grown as a fungus in the grain of the bread they ate.

The most prolific Puritan to come out of colonial times certainly had to be Cotton Mather, who was the youngest student ever admitted to Harvard College. According to James D. Hart, author of "The Oxford Companion to American Literature," Cotton Mather published more than 450 books in his lifetime. His highly praised works have ranged from biographies, histories and essays to sermons and fables, all of which delved into theology, philosophy, science and medicine. Interesting, also, is the fact that Cotton's father, Increase, was quite prolific himself. He published more than 130 books in his lifetime. Cotton's son, Samuel, was the least prolific. He published a mere twenty books in his lifetime.

New Yorkers have always managed to capture a lot of attention, and they were no different in eighteenth-century colonial times. Lord Cornbury, the governor of New York between 1702 and 1708, was a transvestite who appeared in public in full drag, including a dress, silk stockings and a fancy hairdo. After six years of Lord Cornbury showing up at public ceremonies dressed this way, the colonists grew angry and busted him through a recall election.

To close this week's edition, here is a quote from Benjamin Franklin's "Poor Richard's Almanack":

"Keep your eyes wide open before marriage, half shut afterwards."

Make it a great Thanksgiving holiday, and we'll see you next week!

TOASTMASTERS FROM S-3

1930 and incorporated two years later. It is devoted to helping members improve their ability to express themselves, develop and strengthen leadership and executive potential and achieve individual self-development goals.

It is a non-profit, educational organization of Toastmasters clubs throughout the world. The first Toastmasters club was established by Dr. Ralph C. Smedley in 1924.

As for the local club's success, it may be outlined most clearly — as one example — by the achievement of Frank Pascal of Melrose, whose speech at the last meeting was so effective that though the topic itself was of virtually no interest whatever to this writer, the speaker kept everyone's attention riveted throughout his delivery.

But Reading's Carl Beaulieu — in a slightly different vein —, may have summed best the success which Toastmasters has provided for him and for others:

"You may never get rid of those nerves," he said, in describing the butterflies which many feel before speaking in front of an audience.

"You just learn to enjoy them."

CHILDBIRTH EDUCATION

Childbirth Education of the North Shore announces the next 7 week series for those expecting a first baby will begin Tuesday, December 1.

An additional 2 week infant care session to follow is available. A two evening refresher series will begin Monday, November 30 for those who have attended classes during a previous pregnancy.

Advance registration is required as class size is limited to provide personal attention. To register or for additional information call Carolyn at 664-4889.

WOMEN ENTREPRENEURSHIP

The Simmons College Graduate School of Management will host a panel discussion of "Women in Entrepreneurship: Identifying and Targeting Your Market," on Wednesday, December 2 at 6 p.m. The seminar will focus on plans and strategies for women who are starting or running a business.

The program will be held at Simmons' Graduate School of Management Caseroom Building, 451 Marlborough Street, Boston. The admission fee is $5. For information, please call 536-8390.

MUDFLAT POTTERY

Mudflat Studio will hold the second annual Holiday Sale and Open Studios on December 11, 12, and 13. Fifteen studio artists will exhibit and sell their work at the three day festival.

The work includes dinnerware, jewelry, abstract sculpture, and portrait sculpture. The event opens Friday, 6 to 9 p.m., continuing on Saturday and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Demonstrations in throwing, handbuilding, and jewelry making will take place from 11 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. on Saturday and 1 to 3 p.m. on Sunday. Free refreshments will be served.

Mudflat Studio is a non-profit artists' studio and school. The artists in residence form the board of directors, and teach classes in pottery, drawing, jewelry, glaze techniques, and sculpture. The studio is located at 149 Broadway in Somerville, and is accessible by public transportation.

CLASS

"Acting I" will be offered for the first time by Salem State College in its evening program during the spring semester on Tuesdays from 4:30 to 6:45 p.m.

The three-credit undergraduate course will run from January 19-May 3. In-person registration starts on December 14 and ends on January 13. For details, contact the Division of Graduate and Continuing Education, 641-6000.

Taught by Prof. Sally Russell, "Acting I" emphasizes developing the student's powers of imagination, concentration, and observation. Class exercises and scene work will develop motivation, intention and characterization. Also covered will be basic make-up techniques, stage notation, rehearsal and performance disciplines.

"Acting I" is part of a series of courses available in the new Bachelor of Fine Arts degree program in Theatre.

CONCORD ORCHESTRA

The Concord Orchestra, Richard Pittman conducting, will present its second set of concerts for the season on December 6 at 2:30 and 4 p.m. at 51 Walden St. in Concord. These concerts, devoted to the family audience, will feature Carl deSuze narrating Benjamin Britten's Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra.

The concerts will also include Haydn's L'Isola Disabitata Overture and Berlioz's Benvenuto Cellini Overture. During the one hour long concerts, Richard Pittman will precede each piece with a short informative talk, geared toward further enrichment of children and families with this music.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $2.50 for seniors/students and are available in advance or at the door. For further information contact Arlene Ehlers at 369-7973.

HARMONY & ROOTS

The Watersons with Martin Carthy and special guest John Kirkpatrick will appear in concert Saturday, December 5 in Paine Hall, Harvard University, at 8 p.m.

Are you overweight?

Individuals who are or know someone who is 40 pounds or more overweight are invited to attend an orientation sponsored by the Center for Nutritional Research at Winchester Hospital on Wednesday, December 2 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The meeting will take place in the hospital Board Room, conveniently located off the Main Lobby.

Kenneth Storch, M.D., Ph.D., the center's new medical director, will lead the program. He will be assisted by Dr. Ray Mount, psychologist, and the center's registered nurse.

The orientation has been specially scheduled prior to the Christmas holidays, when behavioral changes to effect weight loss ar not first in everyone's mind. However, hearing about the medically supervised program now and in time to think about New Year's Resolutions is advised.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling the center at 729-9042.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

The greatest invention since time began is not the wheel. It is an important cog for almost everything in commerce, business and industry, for almost everything revolves and depends on the wheel. It makes traveling easier, goods and commodities are delivered more efficiently, and it makes our daily work less laborious. All these things, however, become useless to people who don't feel good. So, anything that brings "vim, vigor and vitality" to a person's life must be greater than any invention, including the wheel. Folks, that has to be, without any doubt, dancing. I remember when men would shave, shower, and shine their shoes, and the ladies (God bless them) would wash and set their hair, iron their best dresses, and put on their dancing shoes, and away we'd go for an evening of fun, friendship and relaxation, as we danced up a storm. It could be at the Spanish Gables, Beach View, Kimball's Starlight, the Commodore in Lowell, or Moseley's on the Charles. We would beg, borrow or steal a ride, but we went dancing. After stepping on a girl's toes a couple to times, I asked, "What must I give you for a little kiss?" Her one word answer was "chloroform." She told me later that two things keep me from being a perfect dancer. "What are they?" I foolishly asked. "Your two feet!" she exclaimed. I'll have you know that I took lessons with Arthur Murray." "Go back," she snapped, "and this time dance with Kathryn Murray." My advice to all elected officials, "Holding public office is like dancing on a crowded ballroom floor — no matter how careful one whirls, twists and turns, one is bound to rub someone the wrong way."

Mike Gaffny said, "Woodchipper, I heard that you have a new secretary, what's she like?" "Wonderful," I answered, "but her punctuation is very bad." "I know what you mean," Mike replied, "Mine is always late too." MDC officer Bob Giguere was dispatched to investigate the report that a man was lying alongside a large storm drain in Stoneham. Bob's report was, "Found man alongside sewer. Dead — apparent cause, "sewerside." My friend Frank Mazzoni of Wilmington told me that he wears the pants in his family, usually with an apron in front of them. Kathy came to me in a frenzy yesterday shouting, "Look at this lousy squirrel coat — do you expect me to wear it all my life?" "Why not," I asked, "the squirrel did." "By the way," she said, "where did these blonde hairs on your winter coat you wore last year come from?" I looked at her and said, "Kathy, you forget that you were a blonde last year, weren't you?" I told my friend Lee Ward that there are a hundred million stars in the sky. "If you say so, Woodchipper, I believe you." Then when I told him that a park bench in Woburn Square was "freshly painted," he had to touch it to be sure.

How many readers can identify themselves in this chip? Every few weeks my Aunt Ann O'Donnell gets a visit from a jolly fellow with a big bag over his shoulder. Now, don't think it's Santa Claus — it's her son Dennis, home from college with two weeks of dirty laundry. Folks, right is right even if "nobody is right," and wrong is wrong is wrong even it "everybody is wrong." Marylou Grant from Lynnfield, an account executive with Andover Enterprises, Inc. is my new broker. The broker I had told me to "Get in on the ground floor," elevators are going up. Buy "designer jeans," they're bound to "split." "Potato chips" would be a "wise" investment. "Twenty Mule Team" is good for the "long haul." "Fireworks" are going "sky high." Then he told me to "sell" everything and put all my money in bakeries. I did, and when the "yeast" failed to rise, I lost all my "dough," and that's why I'm changing brokers. Folks, bulls and bears are okay, but watch out for "bum steers."

Tom and Heidi Goddard, owners of Eric's Greenhouse and Garden Center in Reading, along with manager Jim Laschi, are looking forward to their open house, Nov. 28-29. I never qualified for a job at any garden center, Pinewood Garden, Walter Arsenault, Mahoney's Rocky Ledge, Jim Amundsden, Russell Farms, Tony Angelucci, Spence Farm, Jackie Young, Giannino's, Anthony Giamnio, etc. They all didn't like the answers I gave to their questions, like, "What's a weed?" "I pull everything up and if it grows again, it's a weed!" Irrigation? My answer, "Plant one row of onions and one row of potatoes and so on. The onions will make the eyes of the potatoes water so that's "self irrigation!" How can you tell a "dogwood tree?" "By its bark, of course." "What kind of bulbs should one plant to have a "bright" garden? "50-75-and-100 watt bulbs will brighten up any garden." Now you know, folks, why no one will give me a job in a garden center.

Almost all of you readers know that "Life is not a bowl of cherries." It's more like a bunch of "raisins." Raisin' money for the rent or taxes. Raisin' money for food, clothing and college tuition and for a few, raisin' money to pay alimony. The most important thing a father can do for his children is "love their mother."

Paul Rao's house is always secure because every time his dog hears a strange noise, he jumps up and makes a "bolt" for the door. Do you know why most of our young children are a bit confused? Well, some of them are told to find themselves, and most are told to get "lost." Folks, yesterday is "history" and tomorrow a "mystery," so that leaves "today" that we can live and "help" others live — so let's do it "now!" No one ever climbed a mountain by looking at it.

Personality winners: Billy Barker McCall, Dan Hogan, John Dennison and Scott Brian of Barker Lumber, Stacey McCurtin, John and Lillian Rotondi, Arthur and Marie Marino, John Ridings, Diane Prince, Linda Doherty, Paula Fairfield, Eleanor Riddle, Carol McLaughlin, Sherman Murphy, Edmond Baratta, Pam MacKill, and Paul Simon. Paul is an extraordinary person. He is ready and willing to help anyone, anywhere, anytime without any questions asked or needed. He is a sportsman, running, skiing, and bicycling hundreds of miles on weekends. He also has good taaste having been a fan of this column since its very start. Thanks, Paul. No, he's not the presidential candidate. Paul is a chemist with FDA in Winchester.

North Reading Police Chief Henry Purnell, Rotary Club President, welcomed Gary Johnson of The Glass People as a new member. Gary was sponsored by Rotarian Richard Larkin. I'm a member of the Moose, Lions and Elks — that's why I give up my favorite sport "hiking in the woods" during the hunting season. Big game hunter John Noonan and his lovely wife Mary Jo were present at our Sportsmen's Club meeting. (John recently got a 200 pound buck in Maine). Lou O'Malley asked John, "Is it true that a wild animal will not attack a person carrying a flaming torch?" "It all depends," John replied, "how fast the person can run carrying the flaming torch!" Kathy and I attended a Woburn Country Club dance. She wore a beautiful gown that looked like she was poured into, but she had forgotten to say "when!" At least it was better than last year, when she wore a "peek-a-boo," dress, and some of the men "peeked" and then "booed!"

Woodchips welcomes Marl Lookabaugh, Helen McGuire James Noolet, Marty Finkelson, Frank Escobedo Brian Jackson and Eric Crabbendam. Happy Thanksgiving Day to all!

Dogs who can hear

HEARING EAR·DOG PROGRAM

A new book written by author Elizabeth Yates is now available to the public. The book, "Sound Friendships; The Story of Willa and Her Hearing Ear Dog" is a moving account of a profoundly deaf young woman and her Hearing Ear Dog.

Willa Macy, the main character, lost her hearing when a prankster tied a firecracker to her pigtail. The pop was the last sound she would ever hear. As an adult, Willa's silent world becomes a prison until she meets her Hearing Ear Dog "Honey," a Golden Retriever mix who teaches Willa about independence, trust and love.

There are over 16 million deaf and hearing impaired persons living in the United States. Hearing Dogs can be trained to alert these people to various sounds in their environment that their handicap prevents them from hearing.

The dogs can be trained to respond to an alarm clock, smoke alarm, door bell, door knock, oven timer, tea kettle, name being called, ringing of the telephone, siren and baby crying. The dogs wear a bright yellow collar and leash and are allowed into all places of public accommodation.

If anyone would like more information about Hearing Ear Dogs or this new book by Elizabeth Yates, they are asked to contact The Hearing Ear Dog Program, Box 213, West Boylston, Ma. 01583, telephone (617) 835-3304 Voice or TTY.

'Hiding Out' for John Cryer

By Rochelle O'Gorman Flynn

People confuse him with Matthew Broderick all the time. There have even been instances when fans have expressed sympathy to him over "his" (Broderick's) car accident in Ireland. Combine this with his ruddy cheeks and baby face, and 22-year-old Jon Cryer will tell you he has problems getting roles in serious, more meaningful movies other than the light comedies with which he's associated.

So far he is best remembered as "the Duckman" a goofy, but funny character who all but stole the show from Molly Ringwald in "Pretty in Pink." In "Hiding Out" Cryer makes the leap from adolescent roles to adulthood while trying to prove he is more than just a comedian. The film follows a stockbroker (Cryer) as he drops back into high school in an effort to evade both the police and the Boston Mafioso he's been subpoenaed to testify against. Cryer said that while he prefers supporting roles to carrying a picture, he didn't have any trouble adjusting to the more mature aspects of this character, either in front or behind the camera.

"Dino DeLaurentiis had been sending me scripts that I was totally wrong for for months. Scripts for 40-year-old black women. I was trying to figure out what this guy wanted. Finally he sent me one that I was right for.

"There were some problems with it, so I said to my manager, 'Tell him that we'll do it if we can executive produce it,' almost as a joke. And he called me back, laughing even harder, saying, 'They said yes.' "

Being an executive producer means many things. The one definite is that the associate producer has to bring you coffee. Other than that, it depends on whether you are putting up money or just lending your famous name to the project. In Cryer's case, it meant he was in on script development from the beginning and he helped to pick Bob Giraldi as the director.

"We ended up working for four months on getting the script to work the way we wanted to. And that was a new place for me to work. People don't seem to realize how late the actors come into a movie, into the decision-making loop of a movie. Directors and producers have been working on the thing for a year before they get the actors in there. So, actors really don't have very much power over whether things are going to change or not. Actors aren't in on the post- production. I don't really blame actors for bad movies anymore. It was strange to be in a position where I could be blamed for the movie if it didn't work."

As Cryer didn't take written credit for his executive producer status, he's safe from blame if the movie isn't a hit. He did say he didn't take credit because he didn't work on the budget, but just on the creative side of the project.

The son of an actor father and a actress/writer mother, Cryer said he hopes that working as the executive producer will just be a stepping stone to his final goal — directing. The longer you spend with him the more obvious it becomes that control, over both his career and his image, is important to him.

He is very honest about his work, and claims not to worry about publicly criticizing past projects, something most actors wouldn't do under torture. When asked why his last completed movie, director Penelope Spheeris' "Dudes" has been slow to be released, he candidly admitted "it's a rather bizarre flick and nobody knows what to make of it. It's sort of a punk/fantasy/western."

"When Morgan Stewart came out, I disavowed that movie, because I honestly didn't know what it was about. Two weeks after we started shooting that movie, they fired the director and rewrote the script. And I wanted to leave, because I didn't like the new script and I didn't like the new director. But, what could I do? I had no choice in the matter because I'd already shot two weeks.

"Consequently, I did no publicity. I just didn't say anything when the movie came out. Actors aren't allowed to say bad things about movies when they come out, because they can be sued. They are not allowed in any way to inhibit people paying to see the movie. That's why actors will go on and smile and say, 'It was great fun,' even when they don't mean it. I can't do that."

When asked how it was to work on "Hiding Out," Cryer pasted a big smile on his face and said "It was great fun" before letting loose his trademark guffaw.

Blindness from Glaucoma can be prevented

Blindness from glaucoma is almost always preventable, yet this eye disease continues to be one of the leading causes of vision loss in adults over 40. The key to effective glaucoma treatment is early diagnosis and careful follow-up.

Glaucoma is a condition in which fluid in the eye accumulates, causing a rise in pressure within the eye which in turn damages the optic nerve. The elevated pressure compresses nerve fibers at the optic nerve and eventually destroys them. Once injured, the nerve fibers are no longer able to transmit visual messages from the retina to the brain. Side or peripheral vision is frequently lost first; inasmuch as most people do not notice this type of vision loss, there may be substantial blind areas before the person knows something is wrong.

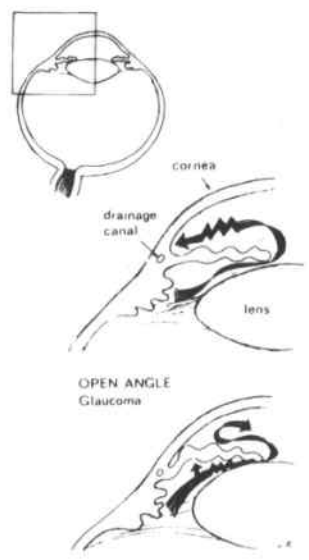

In addition, glaucoma is usually painless. For this reason adults should see an ophthalmologist for periodic examinations. Testing for glaucoma is easy, painless, and remains the best defense against vision loss from this disease.

Most adult persons with glaucoma have the type categorized as open-angle glaucoma. This is characterized by inadequate functioning of the eye's drainage system. Nerve damage may progress silently and slowly.

A less common type of glaucoma is angle-closure glaucoma in which there is an abrupt increase in eye pressure due to a sudden blockage of the drainage system. In this situation immediate treatment to lower the eye pressure is required so as to prevent irreversible loss of vision. Symptoms such as severe pain, blurry vision and halos around lights are associated with an attack of angle closure glaucoma.

Rarely children are born with faulty drainage openings causing congenital glaucoma. Because the child's eye is very elastic, the whole eye may enlarge from the chronic increased pressure. These children tear profusely and are very sensitive to light.

Glaucoma is commonly treated with eye drops and sometimes pills. Prescribed medications must be taken faithfully. As a rule, damage caused by glaucoma cannot be reversed so that once glaucoma is diagnosed prevention of vision loss must rely on periodic eye exams and careful adherence to the treatment regimen.

Most people with glaucoma can live normal lives without fear of blindness. Those over 40, especially if there is glaucoma in the family, can protect themselves by getting regular eye exams and eye pressure checks.

Executive director

The Board of Directors of the Eastern Middlesex Mental Health Association (doing business as Eastern Middlesex Human Services) has announced the appointment of Dale K. Klatzker, LICSW as Executive Director of the agency. Klatzker most recently served as Director of Contract Administration and Fiscal Planning at Northeastern Family Institute, Inc. (NFI) a large multi-service agancy based in Danvers.

Klatzker also served as Director of NFI's Psychological Clinic, Director of NFI's Tri-City services, and as supervisor of several of NFI's other adolescent and adult programs. In addition, he has maintained a private psychotherapy practice for several years.

Eastern Middlesex Human Services is a private non-profit organization that has provided diverse community-based services for over 26 years to children, adults, families and couples residing in the Eastern Middlesex area (Wakefield, Melrose, Stoneham, Reading and North Reading). The agency has evolved from what was a child guidance center to its current status as a multi-service agency. Services offered now include day treatment, geriatric, residential, and community support in addition to outpatient mental health and substance abuse treatment.

The Eastern Middlesex Human Services is a licensed mental health clinic with a staff of social workers, psychologists and psychiatrists available to serve members of the Eastern Middlesex community.

The agency is committed to providing quality care to all who need it, regardless of race, color, creed, sex, age, or financial status. Clients are seen as being equal participants in the treatment process and the agency makes full use of all resources in the community in addition to the client/counselor relationship.

Klatzker holds an undergraduate degree from Brandeis University a Masters in Social Work from Boston University.

SERVICES TO S-14

Unflavored gelatin

A good substitute for laundry starch. Carol Ann Rinzler writes in "What to Use Instead," is unflavored gelatin. Dissolve a packet in a quart of warm water, then dilute the solution with a second quart of warm water. Use the liquid as a stiffening bath for delicate fabric such as thin cotton. Iron while damp.

Areas

To find the area of a circle, multiply the square of the diameter by .785398. To find the area of a rectangle, multiply the length of the base by the height. To find the area of a triangle, multiply the base by the height and divide by 2. To find the area of a trapezoid, add the lengths of the two parallel sides, multiply by the height and divide by 2.

Zones of Earth

The five zones of the earth's surface are Torrid, between the tropics of Cancer and Capricorn; North Temperate, between Cancer and Arctic Circle; South Temperate, between Capricorn and the Antarctic Circle; and the two Frigid zones, between the polar circles and the North and South poles.

Special occasions for the holidays

SHARE A LITTLE WARMTH

Share a little warmth with a friend this fall and winter. The four Animal Rescue League of Boston animal shelters are in need of blankets, towels, and rugs for rescued and homeless animals staying at the shelters in Boston, Dedham, Salem, and East Brewster.

Injured, sick, young, old and even healthy dogs and cats find warmth, protection, and comfort when they curl up in soft, clean bedding.

The Animal Rescue League of Boston's supply of these items is almost gone. If you have any old blankets, towels, or rugs that you can share with a furry friend, please bring them in or send them to: Animal Rescue League of Boston, 10 Chandler Street, Boston, Mass. 02116, or call for free pick-up at 426-9170.

RIDE THE RAILS

Growlers, cow catchers and iron horses are words not heard much today. However, during the golden age of railroads, they were common knowledge. The spirit of that bygone era is still alive at Edaville Railroad.

During the Christmas Light Festival, visitors can experience the romance of railroading against the backdrop of New England's largest holiday light display. Now through Jan. 3, the festival features rides on antique steam trains past a Christmas panorama with more than 200,000 twinkling lights.

The Christmas Light Festival is open nightly until Jan. 3. Hours are 4 to 9 p.m. weekdays and 2 to 9 p.m. weekends and holidays. The park is closed Thanksgiving and Christmas days.

By the way, a growler is a diesel engine, a cow catcher helps move stray cattle from the tracks and an iron horse is, of course, a steam locomotive. Any Edaville conductor can tell you that.

Edaville Railroad is located on Route 58 in South Carver, four miles from Route 495 and 11 miles from Route 3 via Route 44. For more information, call (617) 866-4526.

MUSEUM SCHOOL ART SALE

Over 600 pieces of original artwork — including paintings, drawings and photographs, sculpture, ceramics and stained glass, jewelry, baskets and puppets — will be offered for sale at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston from December 5-14. The objects will be on display in the School's Grossman Gallery at 230 The Fenway where hours are 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. The selection of artwork will change daily. Proceeds from the sale of works benefit the annual fund for student scholarships.

"MESSIAH" PERFORMED FOR 134TH YEAR

The Handel and Haydn Society presents its annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" at Symphony Hall on Friday, December 4, Thursday, December 10 and Sunday, December 13 at 7:30 p.m.; and Sunday, December 6 at 3 p.m. H & H Assistant Conductor Jeffrey Rink will conduct the Society's orchestra and chorus, with soloists Lorraine Hunt, Karen Lykes, Jon Humphrey and Robert Honeysucker.

Tickets are $12-$32 and are available through Teletron at 720-3434. Student and senior rush seats are not available for these performances. For more information call 266-3605.

Handel's "Messiah" has become a Boston holiday tradition since H & H gave the American Premiere of the complete work in 1818. H & H has performed "Messiah" annually since 1854.

LETTERS FROM SANTA AT NORTH POLE

If you know a child who would enjoy receiving a holiday letter from Santa and postmarked from the North Pole, the Air Force Reserve at Westover Air Force Base offers this suggestion.

Encourage the child to write a letter to Santa Claus.

Adults wishing to include a personalized reply to the child from Santa are encouraged to do so, otherwise the Air Force will send a preprinted letter from Santa.

Mail the letters, along with a stamped self-addressed envelope to "Santa's Mailbag, Eielson AFB, Alaska 99702" and the envelope will be returned by volunteers at Detachment 2 of the 11th Weather Squadron with a North Pole postmark.

According to the public affairs office at Westover AFB, letters received at Eielson AFB after Dec. 10 might not be returned in this area in time for Christmas.

From contributing old blankets and towels for dogs and cats to writing Santa in Alaska, COMING ATTRACTIONS tries to find a little something for everyone. But we cannot be everywhere and thus could use your help in discovering and publicizing events of interest to all. Write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about what you have knowledge of. Music, gifts, rides — our interests and cares are diverse.

Community programs for the physically challenged

At public hearings held recently by the Massachusetts Executive Office of Human Services, many advocates turned out to speak on behalf of programs for adults with retardation. The hearings are part of the planning process for the State's FY'89 Budget.

The point was made repeatedly that the salaries paid to the direct care workers serving the developmentally disabled were driving people from the field, and keeping away qualified job applicants at an alarming rate. Advocates asked how they could possibly be considered a budgetary priority when direct care workers are paid at an equal value to those making hamburgers at a fast food restaurant.

Concerned that a "maintenance" budget was being proposed for the Department of Mental Retardation, agencies which contract with DMR to provide services cited the decline in quality of community based programs and the implications that holds for client safety. "Maintenance means that we will continue to be forced to hire staff who may not be able to read or write to take care of clients with severe communication problems," stated one advocate.

Other programs reported that they may be forced to close due to the fact that they cannot staff their residential programs adequately.

While the State budget process has attempted to resolve this issue in the past, various salary upgrading programs were considered "too little, too late." The facts remain that community programs for adults with retardation are seriously underfunded, that a staffing crisis exists, and that a comprehensive program is yet to be implemented to resolve the critical funding inadequacies which exist.

A Senior Technical Illustrator is needed for our Technical Publications Center to work on both mechanical and creative projects, including technical illustration work, layout and paste-up of typeset galleys and visual elements as well as other tasks related to graphic production. The individual will monitor the performance of nightshift graphics crew. Previous experience producing graphics on Apple Macintosh with the ability to spec type, design forms and brochures is preferred. 3-5 years' experience in Commercial or Technical Illustration is required. An AS degree in Graphics, Fine Arts or equivalent experience is essential. Hours are 4p.m. to 12a.m. Applicant must present portfolio at interview.

Data Technicians

The successful candidates will assume varied responsibilities for assigned projects, including computer submissions, scheduling tasks, updating files and coding. To qualify, you'll need 1-2 years' related experience and familiarity with keypunch machines, sorters, timesharing terminals and desk calculators. High School degree is required, with additional coursework towards an Associate's degree in a related field preferable.

Technical Typists

We're looking for organized individuals with the capability to type a wide variety of technical reports, manuals, proposals, tables, charts, and graphs using technical terminology, symbols and equations. The individual may be required to set up tabulations and charts. High School degree is needed with additional secretarial training and 1-3 years' related experience.

Computer Operators

We need computer operators for our second and third shift openings to operate a large scale digital computer, following established routines. Under direct supervision, these individuals will set up and maintain unit record equipment and plotters. Qualified applicants must have a High School degree and related experience. Positions located in Andover and Wilmington facilities.

GENERAL HELP

ANALOGIC®

Mechanical Assembly Group Leader

We have a challenging opportunity for an experienced "hands on" group leader to set up, instruct, and lead a mechanical assembly line of several employees. To qualify, you must have four years of strong electro-mechanical assembly experience and proven administrative skills.

Senior Mechanical Assemblers

If you would like to be involved in building precision mechanical assemblies from a variety of manufacturing documents, we have a job for you.

You should have at least three years of electro-mechanical experience in a manufacturing environment that's given you exposure to cables, harnesses, backplanes, and mechanical chassis assembly. You must be able to read and understand assembly drawings and parts lists; good soldering skills and manual dexterity are essential.

PC Board Solder Specialists

Several opportunities are currently available for qualified precision solderers to perform touch up, repair, and rework on printed circuit boards. To qualify, you should have some soldering experience in an electronics environment. You must know color codes and be able to read component values.

QC Inspectors

You will be responsible for the visual inspection of PC boards, printed wiring assemblies and systems assemblies according to drawing specifications and work standards. You will also be involved with the daily tabulation of work performed. A minimum of one year of experience visually inspecting PC boards and familiarity with electronic components used in various assemblies is required. The ability to work from written and verbal instructions is necessary.

Interested candidates should stop by our Peabody facility conveniently located at Exit 28 off Route 128 to fill out an application or contact Carol Devlin, 246-0300 ext. 3160 to set up an appointment. Analogic, 8 Centennial Drive, Peabody, MA 01961.

Breaks away Wildcat running back Don Sullivan (44) breaks away for a good gain against the Methuen Rangers.

Wildcats vs. Redmen

Victory can make a season

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

This year fans really should throw the respective records of the Wilmington Wildcats (1-7-1) and Tewksbury Redmen (1-6-1) right out the proverbial window. The two teams have won two games between them, lost 13 and tied a pair.

The Wildcats list as their achievements an opening game 14-8 victory over Central Catholic and a heartening 0-0 standoff with Billerica. The Redmen have had heartbreaks and bad breaks throughout their season that lists just one victory- a 15-14 squeaker past Dracut in the second game of the season.

It is unusual when a Thanksgiving morning contest between these teams means absolutely nothing in terms of bowl berths and first place finishes in the balanced Merrimack Valley Football Conference. Thursday morning's game at Tewksbury's Walter Doucette Memorial Field (10 a.m. start) will determine who finishes last in the the conference, a distinction that neither Wildcats' coach Ed Harrison nor Redmen mentor Bob Aylward wants riding upon their proud coaching mantle pieces.

The game does mean something in terms of tradition and emotion, however. This will be the fifty-third Thanksgiving morning meeting between the two schools. It is one of the oldest schoolboy football rivalries in the state. Those who play in this game will always remember the moment.

The Wilmington faithful who know that I bleed Tewksbury Redmen red probably have heard by now that I played middle guard (they call the position nose tackle now) for the Redmen way back in 1972. I will always remember that we almost beat a great Wilmington team that day. Leading a first place Wildcat outfit 8-0 at halftime was shocking to the home WHS crowd that frigid Thanksgiving morning way-back-when.

But Tewksbury ran out of both luck and gas that morning, falling

The Redmen are riding a two game Turkey game win streak after dropping two straight to the Cats. Last year TMHS whomped winless Wilmington, 37-8. This year the game should be close if nothing else.

The Redmen look to junior quarterback Dave Boudreau along with running backs John Cho and Jay Rideout to provide some spark. The defense, solid all season, is led by senior tackle Scott Niles and Tight fit Tewksbury's Tom Burns (31) is sandwiched between blockers Chris Horgan (29) and Scott Niles (64).

Barking QB Redmen junior quarterback Dave Boudreau barks out signals.

The season (from page seven)

senior linebacker Brian French.

The Wildcats have an advantage offensively when they turn tough fireplug scatback Don Sullivan loose. Senior quarterback Dan Woods is probably the most talented signal caller to ever suffer through one victory over two seasons. As is customary, Harrison has moved a tackle into his offensive backfield just in time for Tewksbury, as senior C.J. Barber will do the bulk of the blocking for Sullivan. The defense has been unable to stop the run this season, but one of its' better players is senior linebacker Pat Nally.

Aylward expects the Wildcats to pose many problems for his team. "They've got some nice players in Nally, Sullivan and Barber," the TMHS coach noted. "They've got some quickness, and we won't match up with them size-wise."

Both coaches are entering this game proud of what each of their teams accomplished in their last games against superior opponents. "We responded tremendously in the loss to Andover (21-7). I couldn't be more proud of our kids," offered Aylward. Harrison and his Wildcats came away from their tie with five win Billerica knowing that they could give Tewksbury a good game. Before Billerica, the Wildcats were not so sure.

So, between handshakes and the raising of the Thanksgiving morning glasses, take time out to face the field occasionally and take in what shapes up as a very entertaining high school football game.

Records be damned. This is, after all...Thanksgiving
